Iran defences 'shattered'

NEW DELHI

The conflict in the Middle East is rapidly expanding across the region as the US and Israel-led war with Iran enters its sixth day.

A newly-released high-resolution satellite imagery on Thursday showed one of the clearest visual accounts yet of the scale of the ongoing military campaign, targeting Iranian facilities, especially Tehran, by US and Israeli forces.

The images show damage across multiple strategic sites in Iran, including naval installations, drone facilities, missile bases, and airport infra. The imagery also captures the aftermath of Iranian attacks in other parts of the region, including a strike on a residential high-rise in Bahrain. The images document the effects of an air stikes that appears to have struck military installations across Iran.

A distress call from IRIS Dena reached the Maritime Rescue Coordination Centre in Colombo during the early hours of March 4, according to a statement from the Navy.

The frigate was positioned 20 nautical miles west of Galle, within the search and rescue region under Sri Lankan responsibility. Upon receiving the info, the Indian Navy initiated its efforts without delay.

As per the Navy, a long-range maritime patrol aircraft deployed at 1000 hours on March 4 to support the search operations that were already underway under Sri Lankan leadership. A second aircraft, equipped with air-droppable life rafts, remained on standby for rapid deployment if required.

INS Tarangini, a sailing training ship operating in the vicinity, received orders to assist and reached the spot by 1600 hours that day. By that point, the Sri Lankan Navy and other agencies had already begun search and rescue activities. INS Ikshak, a survey vessel, sailed from Kochi to reinforce the operation. It remains in the area conducting searches for missing personnel as a humanitarian effort on behalf of the shipwrecked crew.

Local artists must get priority in Dasara programs: KEA Chairman Khan

MYSURU

Local artists should be given greater priority in the world-famous Mysuru Dasara festival, said Ayub Khan, Chairman of the Karnataka Exhibition Authority.

Speaking at the inauguration ceremony of the Arunraga Trust and its auditorium, led by Dr. Rekha Arun, near RMP Quarters on Adichunchanagiri Road in Kuvempunagar here on Thursday, he said that artists from other states are being given opportunities during Yuva Dasara, while students are getting chances during Yuva Sambhrama. However, local artists—especially bhavageethe singers—are not receiving adequate opportunities.

Nagaraj V. Bairi, District President of the Karnataka Sugama Sangeetha Parishat, said that during Dasara, artists from outside are invited and paid lakhs of rupees as remuneration. However, local artists are not given sufficient opportunities. Even when they are given a chance, they are paid only around ₹15,000–₹20,000. This disparity should end, and in the coming years local artists must be given more opportunities on all stages, including the Palace stage.

UoM VC Prof. N.K. Loknath highlights the timeless legacy of Kumara Vyasa's Bharata and Karnataka's rich literary heritage

MYSURU

The reprint and release of the classic Kannada literary work Karnata Bharata Kathamanjari, edited by Rashtrakavi Kuvempu and Masti Venkatesh Iyengar, was held at the University of Mysore Press on Thursday.

Speaking on the occasion, Vice-Chancellor Prof. N.K. Loknath said the re-release of the work after many years reflects its enduring literary value and cultural significance. He expressed pride that Prasaranga has been consistently publishing several creative and scholarly works that have gained popularity in recent times. Publications from the university's academic and broadcasting wings have earned recognition across the country, bringing considerable prestige to the university.

The VC pointed out that the two great epics of India — the Ramayana composed by sage Valmiki and the Mahabharata written by sage Vyasa — are invaluable gifts from India to the world. These epics have been translated into numerous languages and are widely known both in India's villages and abroad. The contributions of Kannada poets to the epic tradition, including Adikavi Pampa, author of Pampa Bharata, and Kumaravyasa, also known as Naranappa, who composed his Bharata in the Bhamini Shatpadi metre using Middle Kannada, making it accessible to common readers.

According to Prof. Loknath, Karnata Bharata Kathamanjari became widely popular because it presents the story of the Mahabharata in a simpler and more engaging style compared to earlier versions. The poet's linguistic richness, folk flavour and his ability to portray the inner emotions of characters continue to captivate readers.

Tracing the history of the text's publication, he said German scholar Hermann Mogling first printed four chapters of the Adi Panchaka of Karnata Bharata Kathamanjari in 1852 using a lithographic edition. Later, scholars such as Siddanti Subramanya Shastri, Bharati Sampangirama and Nanjangudu Nanjunda Shastri edited and published the work in the early 20th century.

The work gained wider popularity by 1958. Prof. Loknath also recalled that former Mysore State Chief Minister Kengal Hanumanthaiah was known to listen to recitations of Kumara Vyasa's verses through the traditional Gamaka style during the 1950s.

The Vice-Chancellor said the republication of the classic will help present-day readers rediscover one of the finest treasures of Kannada literature.

Cool Comfort for Wildlife: Mysuru Zoo Installs Sprinklers to Help Animals Beat the Summer Heat

SHYAM SUNDAR VATTAM
MYSURU

As temperatures begin to climb steadily, indicating the likelihood of a harsh summer this year, authorities at the iconic Sri Chamarajendra Zoological Gardens have taken proactive steps to ensure the comfort and well-being of the animals housed in the historic facility.

In an innovative move to help the animals beat the rising heat, zoo officials have installed water sprinklers across most of the open enclosures and closed cages in the sprawling zoo premises. The cooling system is designed to provide periodic showers of fine mist and water that help reduce the surrounding temperature and keep the animals comfortable during the sweltering summer months.

The century-old zoo, popularly known as Mysuru Zoo, houses a wide variety of exotic and native species, many of which are highly sensitive to heat. Animals that originate from cooler climates often struggle to cope with rising temperatures in the tropical summer. Zoo officials say that prolonged exposure to heat can cause stress, exhaustion, and dehydration among certain species if adequate care is not taken.

To address this challenge, the zoo administration has adopted the sprinkler system as a simple yet effective cooling solution. As the temperature rises during the day, the sprinklers are switched on periodically, spraying cool water over the enclosures. The gentle showers create a refreshing environment that allows animals to cool down naturally.

Zoo staff say that several animals have already started enjoying the refreshing water sprays.

The sprinklers not only lower the ambient temperature inside the enclosures but also recreate a rain-like atmosphere that many animals find soothing.

Until a few years ago, Mysuru enjoyed relatively moderate summers. The city's temperature rarely crossed 35 to 36 degrees Celsius, thanks to its lush greenery and dense tree cover. The green canopy surrounding the city once played a crucial role in maintaining a pleasant micro-climate.

However, rapid urbanisation in recent years has significantly altered the city's environmental landscape. Large numbers of trees have been cut down to make way for residential layouts, roads, and commercial complexes. As a result, the city has begun witnessing higher summer temperatures, with the mercury touching nearly 40 degrees Celsius during peak summer.

This change has had a noticeable impact not only on people but also on the animals living in captivity.

Recognising the need to protect the animals from extreme heat, the zoo authorities have taken this thoughtful step to create a cooler and more comfortable habitat for them. The sprinkler system has now become an important part of the zoo's summer management plan.

Visitors to the zoo have also welcomed the initiative, appreciating the efforts taken by the authorities to ensure that the animals remain healthy and stress-free even during the hottest days of the year.

The initiative highlights the zoo's commitment to animal welfare and demonstrates how simple innovations can make a big difference in protecting wildlife from the challenges posed by a warming climate.

FROM MONGOLIAN SKIES TO MYSURU FIELDS

Youths Save Trapped Migratory Goose

MYSURU

In a touching incident that highlights both the vulnerability of migratory birds and the compassion of humans, a rare migratory goose that had travelled thousands of kilometres from Mongolia was rescued after it became trapped in a snare at Hadinaru village on the outskirts of Mysuru.

The bird, exhausted and struggling desperately to free itself, was noticed by villagers who heard its distress calls from the fields. A group of local youths rushed to the spot and carefully freed the frightened bird from the trap, giving it a new lease of life.

Wildlife photographer Madhusudan, who shared details about the species, said the bird belongs to the goose family and is locally known as "Pattedeli Hebbatu," while in English it is called the "Banded Goose." These remarkable birds undertake one of the most challenging migrations in the natural world. Flying at extremely high altitudes, they cross towering mountain ranges and travel thousands of kilometres from Mongolia before arriving in the wetlands and lakes around Mysuru.

The birds usually spend their mornings resting in nearby lakes. At night, after farmers leave their fields, they quietly move into harvested paddy and maize fields in search of food. However, this journey of survival sometimes turns tragic.

In this case, the goose accidentally stepped into a snare that had been laid on the ground, possibly to trap birds. Such traps pose a deadly threat to migratory species that visit the region every year.

Hundreds of migratory birds arrive at this tank during the season, many of them travelling with their young ones and staying here for two to three months before returning to their distant homeland. Unfortunately, due to lack of awareness about these winged visitors, some people attempt to capture them.

Many birds caught in such snares die of suffocation or suffer fatal injuries such as broken necks or legs, later becoming easy prey for stray dogs.

Moved by the helpless cries of the trapped goose, the youths carefully released it back into the open sky. Their compassionate act has been widely appreciated by villagers and wildlife enthusiasts alike.

Madhusudan has urged the Forest Department to investigate the incident and identify those responsible for laying such traps. Punishing the culprits, he said, will help prevent such cruel incidents and ensure that these extraordinary travellers continue to visit Mysuru safely. Protecting these migratory birds, he emphasized, is not just a duty — it is a responsibility we owe to nature itself.

Land Sharks Circle Mysuru

Govt Land Under Siege Amid Official–Realtor Nexus

SHYAM SUNDAR VATTAM
MYSURU

As land prices soar and Bengaluru saturates, Mysuru's government lands are becoming the new hunting ground for powerful land grab syndicates.

Mysuru, once lovingly described as a peaceful pensioners' paradise, is now witnessing an alarming surge in land-grab attempts. With real estate prices skyrocketing in nearby Bengaluru and available land shrinking rapidly, developers and speculators are increasingly turning their eyes toward Mysuru.

But this rush for land has also opened the floodgates for corruption. According to insiders, a powerful nexus of corrupt officials, document forgers and real estate middlemen has begun targeting valuable government land across the city and district.

Forged Documents, Narrow Escape

In a recent shocking incident, fraudsters allegedly attempted to register a parcel of land belonging to a former BJP Member of Legislative Council by forging his signature. The attempt was foiled at the last minute at the office of the Sub-Registrar.

The criminals had reportedly fabricated Aadhaar cards, PAN cards and other documents to impersonate the owner and transfer the land illegally. Fortunately, an alert staff member sensed something suspicious and immediately alerted the former legislator, who rushed to the office and halted the registration just in time.

"If the staff member had not been vigilant, the land would have quietly changed hands," a source in the registration department said.

Though a police complaint has been filed, the accused are still at large.

Government Land Records in Disarray

A senior government officer admitted that the district administration itself does not have a clear picture of the extent of government land available in the district. "Many of the records are 70 to 80 years old. Unscrupulous officials tamper with these documents and create fresh fake records to transfer land illegally," the officer revealed. Large portions of gomala land (grazing land) and B-kharab land — which legally belongs to the government — have allegedly been transferred to private individuals through manipulated records.

A Well-Organised Land Grab Syndicate

Sources say a well-organised syndicate is actively scouting for vulnerable government land across Mysuru. The modus operandi are simple yet dangerous: Identify government land with weak or unclear records. Create forged ownership documents.

Form residential layouts and sell sites. Construct houses quickly to establish occupation.Once people start living there, pressure mounts on the government to regularise the land on humanitarian grounds. "Encroachers know that once houses come up, the government will hesitate to demolish them," said a retired revenue official.

Land irregularities are not limited to government land alone. Complaints have repeatedly surfaced about sites being sold to multiple buyers by the Mysuru Development Authority, earlier known as MUDA. Several years ago, former MUDA chairman P. Rajeev had promised a CID probe into suspicious land deals and the mysterious disappearance of important files from the authority's office. However, the investigation never materialised. Later, a multi-crore scam surfaced involving the allotment of 20 to 30 sites to a single individual, raising serious questions about the functioning of the authority.

Residents had hoped that Siddaramaiah, the Chief Minister who hails from the district, would take decisive action to clean up the system. "People believed Mysuru would finally see accountability. Unfortunately, the system seems stronger than the reformers," said a civic activist.

A City at the Crossroads

Urban planners warn that if these activities are not checked immediately, Mysuru could soon face the same chaotic urbanisation and rampant land grabbing that has plagued Bengaluru. "Mysuru is standing at a critical crossroads. Either the authorities act now, or the city will lose its identity to land mafias," warned a senior urban planner.

For a city that prides itself on heritage, planning and peaceful living, the stakes could not be higher. Unless strict action is taken to protect government land and bring corrupt officials to book, Mysuru's transformation from a "City of Palaces" to a playground for land grabbers may become an irreversible reality.

MLA Srivatsa alleges ₹200 crore land scam in Mysuru

MYSURU

Krishnaraja Assembly Constituency BJP MLA T.S.Srivatsa claimed that office of sub-registrar has prepared a sale deed for 24.10 acres of land at Survey Number 4 in Kurubarahalli much against the decision of the Mysuru Taluk Tahsildhar to declare it as a government property.

Sharing details and documents with the media on Thursday, the MLA said after a long-drawn legal battle for more than 20 years, the Mysuru Tahsildhar had declared that portion of land as the government property in the early 2025.

However, that had not been mentioned in RTC. On December 12, 2025, the sub-registrar has made the sale deed of this property for Rs 40 crore in name of two land developers-one from Belagavi and another from Bengaluru. The sale deed has not been executed as there will be six months of time for it. The current value of that property was around Rs 200 crore. The 24 acres of land is situated in the foothills of the Chamundi Hills It was quite surprising to note here that how did the decision of the tahsildhar declaring it as the government property was not mentioned in the records. This shows the clearly hand in glove of the district government officials with real estate developers.

Srivatsa said such land grabbing cases were coming to light in the home district of Chief Minister Siddaramaiah and this shows how the bureaucracy was not afraid of doing such illegal things by disowning the decision of the revenue department. It is believed that some influential persons were behind this land scam and they had totally pushed the tahsildhar's order under the carpet and got the sale deed done in favor of two real estate developers. This clearly indicate that the government land is not safe in Mysuru and they are being usurped by land sharks with the connivance of the government officials. All documents will be handed over to the CM as well as the chief secretary to take stern action against the sub-registrar concerned and other officials who were involved in this Rs 200 crore land scam. The CM must take strong note of this incident and take action against the guilty.

KERC Approves Electricity Tariff Hike for Commercial, Industrial Users

Despite protests, the Karnataka Electricity Regulatory Commission has increased tariffs for commercial and industrial users

KARNATAKA ELECTRICITY REGULATORY COMMISSION

The Karnataka Electricity Regulatory Commission (KERC) has approved revised electricity tariffs for the financial year 2025–26, with the new rates set to take effect from April. Despite earlier indications that there would be no increase, the Commission has raised tariffs for commercial and industrial consumers, drawing sharp criticism from trade bodies and political leaders.

Under the revised tariff structure, higher fuel and demand charges have been imposed on commercial and industrial categories including LT-3A, HT-2B, LT-5 and HT-2A. These categories cover a wide range of establishments such as shops, manufacturing units, MSMEs, IT and technology parks, theatres, hotels and other commercial enterprises.

For LT-3A commercial consumers, the tariff has been increased from ₹7 to ₹7.10 per unit, along with a fixed charge of ₹235 per kilowatt. Industrial consumers under the LT-5 category will now pay ₹5.20 per unit, up from ₹4.50, with a fixed charge of ₹165 per horsepower.

Similarly, HT-2A industrial users will pay ₹6.70 per unit, slightly higher than the previous ₹6.60, with a demand charge of ₹365 per kVA. The most significant increase has been seen in the HT-2B commercial category, which includes complexes, cinemas and hotels. The tariff for this category has risen sharply from ₹5.95 to ₹6.90 per unit, with a demand charge of ₹390 per kVA.

The proposed tariff revision had faced strong opposition during a public hearing held on February 20. Industry representatives had argued that the Commission had earlier suggested that tariffs would not be increased, and the final decision has now angered several trade and industry associations.

Officials said the tariff revision was primarily driven by financial pressures faced by the State's electricity distribution companies. The five electricity supply companies, or ESCOMs, reported a combined revenue shortfall of about ₹4,620 crore in the previous financial year and had urged the Commission to allow a tariff revision to bridge the gap.

The State government has also been providing subsidies for free electricity to agricultural pump sets. While ₹16,021 crore was allocated for the scheme, the actual requirement was estimated at ₹20,640 crore. Despite the additional subsidy support, the Commission has permitted the recovery of the remaining gap from commercial and industrial consumers.

However, the free electricity scheme for agricultural pump sets up to 10 horsepower will continue. Additionally, the per-unit rate in certain categories has been reduced from ₹8.30 to between ₹6.57 and ₹7.79.

Move to Online System for Civic Records from Next Financial Year: Rao

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

Implementation of upgraded technology will help authorities track the progress of civic projects more efficiently.

Chief Commissioner Maheshwar Rao has directed officials to upgrade the existing manual register system to a fully online system from the upcoming financial year within the jurisdiction of the Bengaluru West City Corporation.

During a visit to the RR Nagar Zonal Office on Thursday, Rao inspected register books related to job codes and technical approvals. Noting that records were still being maintained manually, he instructed officials to transition to a digital system starting next financial year to improve transparency and efficiency in administration.

Officials said the move would help streamline record-keeping and enable better monitoring of development works. With the introduction of the online system, authorities will be able to track the progress of civic projects more effectively and maintain real-time records.

During the inspection, Rao also reviewed infrastructure facilities at the zonal office. Additional office spaces are currently being constructed on the third floor of the RR Nagar Zonal Office building. He directed officials to complete the construction work at the earliest to ensure better functioning of the office.

The Chief Commissioner further stressed the importance of maintaining cleanliness within the office premises. He instructed staff to ensure that the surroundings are kept neat and organised so that the office environment remains professional and accessible to the public.

While inspecting the meeting hall at the zonal office, Rao suggested undertaking renovation work to upgrade the facility. He also directed officials to remove storage cabinets and boxes placed along the corridors to improve space management and maintain order within the building.

Later, Rao inspected ongoing road works in the western part of the city. He reviewed the asphalting work being carried out on Shankar Mutt Road in Mahalakshmi Layout and also examined traffic conditions at Shankar Mutt Circle. He instructed officials to provide a free left turn from Modi Hospital Road towards Basaveshwara Main Road and from Kurubarahalli Road towards Shankar Mutt Road. He also asked officials to prepare a comprehensive design for the development of the circle with the help of urban planners.

Rao also inspected the white-topping work on Dr. Rajkumar Road. Officials informed him that work on a 700-metre stretch between Navrang Theatre and Rajajinagar 10th Cross is progressing, with one section already opened for vehicular movement. The remaining portion is expected to be completed by March 31.

Additional Commissioner (Development) Digvijay Bodke, Joint Commissioner Aarthi Anand, Chief Engineers Swayamprabha and Dr. Raghavendra Prasad, along with other officials, were present during the inspection.

Reiterating the civic body's commitment to improving infrastructure, the Additional Commissioner said the corporation would accelerate development works to ensure smoother traffic movement and better civic amenities for residents.

HC Quashes Case Against Nalapad Harris Over Protest

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

The Karnataka High Court has quashed the criminal case registered against Congress leader Mohammed Nalapad Harris for allegedly disrupting train services during a protest at Whitefield Railway Station in 2022. A bench headed by Justice M. Nagaprasanna allowed the petition filed by Nalapad challenging the case and the trial court proceedings. The court observed that the allegations made against the petitioner did not attract the provisions under Sections 154(C), 147, 154 and 174(A) of the Railway Act. The bench noted that there was insufficient material to justify prosecution under the cited sections. It further stated that the trial court had taken cognisance of the case without properly exercising discretion, and therefore the proceedings against the petitioner could not be sustained in law.

Lokayukta raids; officers wait 2 hrs to enter Hassan official's house

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

The Karnataka Lokayukta carried out early morning raids at the residences and offices of several government officials across eight districts on Thursday following allegations of possessing disproportionate assets and corruption.

Simultaneous searches were conducted in Bengaluru, Mysuru, Mandya, Bagalkot, Dharwad, Hassan, Vijayapura and Yadgir districts. Teams of Lokayukta officials inspected properties linked to officers from various departments, including public works, electricity, water supply and welfare departments.

Among those whose premises were searched were R. Shashidhar, Chief Executive Officer of Raitha Seva Sahakari Bank in Yelahanka village, H.C. Indresh, Assistant Professor at Hebbal Veterinary College, and KRIDL Chief Engineer Vasant V. Naik. Raids were also conducted at locations linked to Viresh Hiremath, Deputy Electrical Inspector of the Electrical Department in Yadgir; S. Satish, Assistant Executive Engineer of the Public Works Department in Mandya; M.K. Surakoda, Backward Classes Welfare Department taluk officer in Dharwad; Ashif Iqbal, Assistant Executive Engineer and in-charge Executive Engineer of the Mysuru Water Board; and P.G. Prakash, Junior Engineer of the Krishnabhagya Jal Nigam in Vijayapura.

A dramatic situation unfolded in Hassan when officials attempted to search the residence of M.C. Satyanarayana, an Assistant Executive Engineer of the city corporation. Officers led by Lokayukta DySP Suresh Kumar and Inspector Shilpa reached his house in Vidyanagar around 5.15 a.m., but the doors remained locked and the lights inside were switched off.

Despite repeated knocks and calls, there was no response from inside. Officials reportedly climbed onto the building and knocked on the windows, asking the occupant to open the door. The team waited outside the house for more than two hours before additional personnel from the K.R. Puram police station arrived at the spot.

After being asked to stand before the CCTV camera and open the door, Satyanarayana finally opened it, allowing the Lokayukta team to enter and conduct the inspection.

Lokayukta Superintendent of Police Nandini also visited the site briefly to monitor the situation.

Article 22 Protection Applies to Foreign Nationals in India: HC

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

The Karnataka High Court has held that the constitutional protection guaranteed under Article 22 of the Constitution of India is not limited to Indian citizens but extends to all persons within the territory of India, including foreign nationals. Justice M. Nagaprasanna made the observation while granting relief to two Nigerian nationals who had challenged their arrest under the Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances Act. The court emphasised that Article 22(1) mandates that every person arrested must be informed of the grounds of arrest and that this requirement is a mandatory constitutional safeguard rather than a mere procedural formality.

The court observed that the law does not prescribe a rigid format for communicating the grounds of arrest. Substantial compliance is considered sufficient, provided the arrested person is made aware of the reasons for the arrest. However, the judge noted that in the present case, the authorities had failed to comply with the legal requirements laid down by the Supreme Court of India regarding the communication of arrest grounds.

The petitioners, Emeka James Iwoba and Uderike Fidelis, had approached the High Court seeking a declaration that their arrest was illegal. They argued that they were not informed of the grounds of arrest and were also not produced before a magistrate within 24 hours, as required by law.

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

G. Parameshwara, Karnataka's Home Minister, said cases have been registered against those who staged protests in the city following the death of Iran's Supreme Leader Ali Khamenei.

Speaking to reporters near his residence in Sadashivanagar, Mr. Parameshwara said a small group of people viewed Khamenei as a spiritual leader and may have felt grief at his passing. However, he emphasised that any form of protest must comply with the laws of the country.

"People may express their sentiments, but demonstrations must be conducted within the legal framework. In this case, no permission was sought from the authorities and the protest was held without prior approval. The police have already registered cases against those involved," he said. He added that such protests would not be permitted in the coming days without proper authorisation.

The Minister reiterated that court directions regarding public demonstrations must be followed strictly. He noted that protests in Bengaluru are permitted only at designated venues such as Freedom Park. "Everyone must respect court orders. The court has clearly directed that protests should be held at Freedom Park, and we are following that rule," he said, adding that action had been initiated regarding the recent protest.

Responding to questions about a dinner meeting invitation from Deputy Chief Minister D. K. Shivakumar, Mr. Parameshwara said there was nothing unusual about it. He remarked that leading the Karnataka Pradesh Congress Committee for six years was not an easy task and appreciated Mr. Shivakumar's efforts.

Civic Body Deploys ₹65-L Machine to Vacuum Roadside Waste

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

The Bengaluru North City Corporation has introduced a truck-mounted litter-picking machine worth ₹65 lakh to clear dry waste from roadsides, vacant sites and hard-to-reach areas across its jurisdiction.

The newly procured equipment is designed to suck dry waste such as leaves, paper and plastic into a vacuum chamber mounted on the truck. With a capacity of 5,000 litres, the machine can efficiently collect garbage from locations where sanitation workers often find it difficult to reach.

According to BNCC Commissioner Pommala Sunil Kumar, the civic body decided to procure the machine after observing its successful use by the Tumakuru City Municipal Corporation.

"We procured a similar model and customised it according to our requirements by widening the suction hose. The machine will initially be used on a pilot basis," he said.

Officials said the equipment will help speed up waste collection and reduce manual labour, especially in areas where large quantities of dry waste accumulate along roadsides.

The corporation has currently purchased only one such machine at a cost of ₹65 lakh. However, officials indicated that there are plans to procure smaller versions of the litter-picking machines if the pilot project proves effective.

Meanwhile, Maheshwar Rao, Chief Commissioner of the Greater Bengaluru Authority, has reportedly asked officials to prepare a proposal to explore the possibility of deploying similar machines across other parts of the city.

BNCC Deputy General Manager Rashmi N said the vacuum system can also be used to remove dry waste from roadside drains, helping prevent blockages during the rainy season.

Despite the new technology, some citizens remain cautious about its performance in Indian conditions. Mahesh Readdy, a waste management activist, said such machines are efficient in clearing leaves and light dry waste but may face problems if they encounter heavier objects like coconut shells, beer bottles or binding wires commonly found on city streets.

He pointed out that similar pilot projects carried out earlier in Mumbai and Telangana had faced maintenance issues, raising concerns about long-term sustainability.

Residents demand completion of Rajiv Gandhi University of Health Sciences campus, believing it will enhance education and create opportunities

RAMANAGARA

People of Bengaluru South District are eagerly waiting for the State budget to be presented on Friday by Chief Minister Siddaramaiah. Residents and farmers from the district, which is also the home district of Deputy Chief Minister D. K. Shivakumar, have placed several hopes on the upcoming budget.

The Chief Minister is set to present his record 17th State budget. People of the district expect the government to announce major development projects that can improve infrastructure, agriculture, and employment opportunities in the region.

One of the key demands is the completion of the long-pending campus of Rajiv Gandhi University of Health Sciences. Residents believe the project will boost education and create new opportunities for students in the district.

Farmers have also demanded better support for silk and mango cultivation, which are the main crops grown in the district. They are requesting loan waivers, fair support prices, and the early opening of the modern silk market built near Channapatna. Although the market structure is ready, it has not yet started functioning.

Channapatna is famous across the country for its traditional wooden toys made from special wood. However, artisans say the industry lacks proper marketing and government support. They are hoping the budget will provide financial help and modern facilities to promote this unique craft.

Residents are also demanding a high-tech stadium in the district, especially in Channapatna, where there are very limited sports facilities for youth.

Tourism development is another major expectation. Popular destinations such as Sangama, Mekedatu and Savandurga need better infrastructure and promotion.

Child protection policy must be strictly enforced

CHITRADURGA

Dr. Thippeswamy criticized ten years of poor policy implementation, urging all institutions, including private centers, to follow child safety rules and form a Child Protection Committee.

Member of the Karnataka State Commission for Protection of Child Rights Dr. K.T. Thippeswamy said that proper implementation of the Child Protection Policy is essential in all educational institutions to ensure the safety of children below 18 years.

He was speaking after inaugurating a one-day training workshop for principals of diploma, polytechnic, ITI and paramedical colleges at the Mini Hall of the Zilla Panchayat in Chitradurga on Thursday. The programme focused on the Karnataka State Child Protection Policy 2016 (Revised 2023) and child protection laws. It was organised jointly by the commission, district administration, Zilla Panchayat, the Department of Women and Child Development Karnataka and the District Child Protection Unit.

Dr. Thippeswamy said it is unfortunate that even after ten years of the policy's introduction, many institutions have not implemented it properly. He said the policy is meant to ensure safety for children under 18 and must be followed by all institutions.

He added that during visits to ITI, polytechnic and paramedical colleges across the state, it was found that several principals were unaware of the policy. He clarified that the rules apply not only to government schools but also to aided, unaided institutions and private tuition centres. Every institution must form a Child Protection Committee, he said. He noted that earlier the policy was limited to the education department, but now it has been expanded into a detailed circular involving 11 departments. Authorities and educational institutions must work together to prevent violence against children and provide them with a safe environment. Deputy Director K.H. Vijayakumar stressed that protecting children should be the top priority of institutions and committees must actively work to ensure student safety.

Beneficiaries have been advised to register immediately on the department's portal https://skillmission.karnataka.gov.in/ and participate in free job-oriented trainings offered at Government Industrial Training Institutes (ITI), GTTC, and Rudset Training Centers.

Kolar Bescom engineer suspended over negligence

KOLAR

District in-charge Minister Byrathi Suresh expressed strong displeasure at officials for failing to address public concerns during a meeting at the Zilla Panchayat auditorium in Kolar on Thursday. The minister criticized the officials of the Rural Drinking Water Supply and BESCOM departments for their negligence. Malur MLA K.Y. Nanje Gowda raised concerns over a drinking water project, highlighting that despite Rs 43 crore being allocated for water supply from the Malur Markandeya dam, the people still had no access even after seven years. Minister Byrathi Suresh condemned the delay, pointing out that funds had been spent without results, and instructed Rural Drinking Water Supply Executive Officer Raghu to submit a full report within a week.

During the meeting, Kolar MLA Kothur Manjunath complained that Bescom engineer Gurappa of Vemagal village was unresponsive to calls. Acting swiftly, Minister Byrathi Suresh, with BESCOM MD Devaraj on the line, ordered the immediate suspension of Gurappa for negligence. The minister emphasized that such irresponsible behavior would not be tolerated in public service.

Officials present were reminded of their duty to citizens, and the minister warned that delays and negligence affecting essential services like water and electricity would face strict action. Demand Rs 50,000 crore for water resources

The Irrigation Implementation Struggle Committee has urged the Karnataka government to allocate at least Rs 50,000 crore to the Water Resources Department in the upcoming state budget and reserve Rs 4,000 crore for the Upper Bhadra River project.

Speaking at a press conference at the Journalists' House in Chitradurga on Thursday, committee leader Hampayanamalai said the state government must correct past mistakes and provide adequate funds for irrigation projects in the region.

He criticised leaders for failing to deliver on earlier promises related to the Upper Bhadra project and said farmers in the plains had been disappointed by delays and lack of funding. He urged Chief Minister Siddaramaiah to ensure proper allocation in the budget to support irrigation development.

According to the committee, the 2025–26 state budget allocated only Rs 250 crore for the Upper Bhadra project while expecting a grant of Rs 1,000 crore from the Centre. However, the central government had not approved the project or released the expected funds, which created confusion and disappointment among people in the region.

In the previous budget, a total of Rs 18,826 crore was allocated to the Water Resources Department. Out of this amount, funds were distributed among different irrigation corporations, including Krishna Bhagya Jala Nigam, Cauvery Neeravari Nigam, Karnataka Neeravari Nigam and Visvesvaraya Jala Nigam.

The committee said the allocation for Visvesvaraya Jala Nigam also covers projects like Yettinahole and Upper Bhadra, leaving limited funds for actual project work.

Members pointed out that the total expenditure on the Upper Bhadra project had already crossed Rs 11,345 crore by January 2026, while pending bills stood at about Rs 1,896 crore by February.

Committee leaders demanded that the state government release sufficient funds to speed up irrigation work and support farmers. Several farmer leaders attended the press conference.

After a gap of 40 years, the sacred bullocks of Lord Bommalingeshwara Swamy started their journey from Marammanahalli in Kudligi taluk on Wednesday morning. They were taken to the Bommalingeshwara Swamy temple premises at Malleharavi village, where special rituals were performed.

On Thursday morning, the deity was carried in a grand bullock procession to Gangammanahalli. Along the way, devotees performed traditional tribal rituals, showcasing the rich heritage of the region. The procession continued through Nagasamudra Valley, Megala Valley, Bommadevarahalli, and Lower Valley before returning to Konpur in the evening.

Devotees from more than 20 villages in neighboring Andhra Pradesh, including Madenahalli and Kallem, joined the festivities. They performed Rudrabhishek, an ancient ritual of worship, in the evening, followed by devotional bhajans that echoed through the village.

The event highlighted the importance of preserving tribal traditions and provided a platform for younger generations to witness and participate in the unique cultural heritage of the taluk. Local organizers and community leaders expressed their pride in keeping these age-old customs alive for future generations.

Madiga leaders demand internal reservation for jobs

Nagendra warned against actions causing confusion in the Social Welfare Department and criticized Minister H. C. Mahadevappa for allegedly favoring a specific community in statements

HUNSUR

The Karnataka government should fill 56,432 vacant posts by following internal reservation rules, said Arakalavadi Nagendra, leader of the Madiga Horata Samiti.

Speaking at a press conference held at the Journalists' Association office in Hunsur, he said the government must fill the large number of vacancies without creating confusion about reservation rules. According to him, recruitment should be done based on internal reservation within the Scheduled Castes category.

Nagendra said the government had earlier planned to fill the posts based on the reservation pattern followed in 2022. However, he warned that any step that creates confusion in the Social Welfare Department should be avoided. He also criticised Social Welfare Minister H. C. Mahadevappa for allegedly making statements that favour a particular community.

He said internal reservation has already been approved and divided into three groups — A, B and C — and the Governor has also given consent. Therefore, the government must implement it properly while filling the vacant posts.

Nagendra explained that the Basavaraj Bommai government in 2022 had increased reservation by 2 percent for Scheduled Castes and 4 percent for Scheduled Tribes. Filling the posts based on this revised percentage may create legal complications, he said, and demanded that the earlier 15 percent reservation system should be followed while applying internal reservation.

He added that Scheduled Castes should receive 2 percent and Scheduled Tribes 4 percent reservation separately, and the remaining posts can be filled after the final court verdict.

Nagendra warned that protests will be held in Mysuru, Chamarajanagar, Hassan and Mandya districts if the government fails to act. Leaders including Parashurama, P. K. Belthur Venkatesh and Shivaramu were present.

Farmers receive equipment under Ganga Kalyan scheme

BIDAR

Scheduled Tribe farmers in Bidar South constituency received irrigation equipment under the Ganga Kalyan Scheme, distributed by MLA Dr. Shailendra Beldale at his office in Bidar city. The equipment included motors, pump sets, and other necessary tools for setting up borewells, aimed at providing permanent irrigation facilities to farmers.

Dr. Beldale emphasized that access to continuous irrigation is crucial for rural development and the economic stability of farmers. "This scheme offers a long-term solution for those struggling with water shortages, helping farmers carry out agricultural activities throughout the year," he said. He added that proper use of the irrigation systems would increase crop production and significantly improve farmers' income.

The MLA also urged the government to increase the Ganga Kalyan target to further strengthen the economic independence and social upliftment of Scheduled Tribe farmers. "Central and State Governments are committed to empowering farmers and supporting rural development," he noted.

Taluk Development Officer Somashekar, Mukhandas Suresh Mashetti, Shanmukappa Karakampalli, Ashoka Reddy, Nagashetty Chatanalli, Kashinath Aldi, Subhash Metage, Udaya Maharaj, Pundalik Tubaka, Janardhana Reddy, Paramesh Patil, Shailesh, Siddharudha Bhalke, and Suryakanta Gunnalli attended the program.

Dr. Beldale highlighted the government's focus on ensuring that irrigation facilities are available year-round, enabling farmers to boost crop output and income. "We are fully committed to the economic well-being of our farmers and rural development," he said.

The Ganga Kalyan Scheme continues to be a vital step in improving agricultural productivity and supporting the livelihoods of Scheduled Tribe communities across Bidar South.

MP Sudhakar Announces Massive Ten Lane Highway Upgrade

CHIKKABALLAPUR

In a major boost to regional infrastructure, Chikkaballapur MP Dr. K. Sudhakar announced on Thursday that National Highway 44, stretching from Devanahalli to the Andhra Pradesh border, will be transformed into a 10-lane expressway. The ambitious project, estimated at ₹2,500 crore, is set to commence within three months following the successful completion of land acquisition.

Presiding over the District Development Coordination and Monitoring Committee (DISHA) meeting, Dr. Sudhakar reviewed various central schemes. Beyond infrastructure, he emphasized agricultural welfare, noting that the Centre has set a high MSP of ₹4,886 per quintal for Ragi, urging local farmers to utilize government procurement centers.

Energy self-reliance was another focal point. Under the KUSUM-C scheme, the district aims to generate 300 MW of solar power, ensuring farmers receive free electricity during daylight hours. "Such initiatives are milestones toward making India a developed nation by 2047," the MP stated.

Addressing public health and rural development, the MP confirmed that the District AYUSH Hospital will be inaugurated within two months. Furthermore, 30 villages have been selected under the Adi Adarsh Gram Yojana for comprehensive upgrades based on local demands.

With summer approaching, Dr. Sudhakar directed officials to prevent water scarcity. While the Jal Jeevan Mission has seen progress in over 800 villages, he warned contractors against delays. He also advocated for third-stage water treatment for the HN and KC Valley projects to ensure safety for agricultural use, citing scientific concerns over secondary-treated water.

Karwar Transport Overhaul: New Buses And Infrastructure Upgrades

KARWAR

In a move to bolster regional connectivity, Satish K. Sail has instructed the North Western Karnataka Road Transport Corporation (NWKRTC) to sync bus schedules with local demand. Speaking at the Taluk Panchayat KDP meeting on Thursday, Sail expressed dissatisfaction over the cancellation of previous multi-axle services to Bengaluru, emphasizing that student exams and senior citizen needs must dictate transport priorities.

Transportation officials revealed a significant fiscal recovery, noting that the Shakti scheme—providing free travel for women—helped the local division swing from a ₹36 crore loss to a ₹13 crore profit. Infrastructure is also scaling up, with a ₹6 crore bus depot currently under construction.

To further ease long-distance travel, two new 'Pallakki' buses are scheduled to begin the Karwar-Bengaluru route within three days.

Road safety emerged as a critical concern. Sail directed the National Highway Authority of India (NHAI) to install streetlights from Majali to Bhatkal and construct underpasses at high-accident zones like Aversa Kyathayani Temple and Hiregutti. To prevent nighttime accidents, local panchayats will now display notices requiring livestock owners to stall cattle after 5:00 PM.

The meeting also touched upon urban safety, with Sail ordering HESCOM to replace aging electrical wires and instructing police to set up checkpoints to stop 50-ton overloaded vehicles from damaging roads. Finally, health officials were told to install digital scrolling boards at multi-specialty hospitals to provide real-time updates on doctor availability and diagnostic machinery status.

Youth Parliament Echoes Basavanna's Vision At University

TUMKUR

The spirit of democratic debate took center stage at Tumkur University on Thursday as students gathered for the Viksit Bharat District Level Youth Parliament 2026. Organized by the National Service Scheme (NSS) and the Union Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports, the event aimed to instill constitutional values in the next generation of leaders.

Addressing a packed Sir M. Visvesvaraya Auditorium, keynote speaker and former MLA Shri Y.S.V. Datta urged students to look toward historical milestones to safeguard the future. Drawing a parallel between modern governance and the 12th-century Anubhava Mantapa, Datta described Basavanna's assembly as the world's first true parliament, where logic and equality reigned supreme.

"Democracy thrives on institutional strength, not individual worship," Datta remarked, warning the youth against the dangers of personality cults. He reflected on the lessons learned during the Emergency period, reminding the audience that a vigilant youth is the greatest defense against the erosion of democratic rights. He encouraged participants to engage in constructive dissent and evidence-based debate.

The program, coordinated by Dr. Nagabhushana Bagganadu, featured mock parliamentary sessions where students debated national policies, mimicking the procedures of the Lok Sabha. The university's NSS unit highlighted that such platforms are essential to transforming India into a developed nation (Viksit Bharat) by 2047. The event concluded with a call for students to remain politically informed and ethically grounded in their civic duties.

Mandya plans major switch to LED streetlights

MANDYA

The Mandya district administration has announced a major plan to replace all traditional street lights in the district's eight urban local bodies with energy-efficient LED lights. District Collector Dr. Kumar said the move would save electricity, reduce maintenance costs, and provide a longer service life for public lighting.

Presiding over a district-level meeting on the Centralized Commissioning and Maintenance (CCMS) Scheme, Dr. Kumar explained that a total of 15,593 traditional street lights would be replaced.

In addition, 5,000 new LED lights would be installed across the urban areas. The maintenance of the street lights will be ensured for seven years to guarantee consistent performance.

Dr. Kumar emphasized the importance of installing smart meters within the project areas and implementing the CCMS system to monitor real-time maintenance data. "With this system, we can track performance efficiently and respond quickly to any issues," he said.

Currently, the urban local bodies spend around Rs. 15 crores annually on electricity for street lights. After implementing the LED project, this consumption is expected to reduce by nearly 58%, saving approximately Rs. 7 to 8 crores each year. He instructed officials to coordinate with project consultants, CHESCO, and local authorities to ensure smooth implementation of the project.

The District Urban Development Fund Project Officer T. N. Narasimhamurthy and Executive Engineer Pratap attended the meeting along with urban local body officials.

Dr. Kumar concluded that the LED streetlight project is a step toward energy efficiency, cost savings, and modernization of public infrastructure in Mandya, reflecting the district's commitment to sustainable development.

The Bombay High Court on Thursday refused relief to taxi and auto-rickshaw drivers who sought permission to offer namaz near Mumbai airport during Ramzan. The court said security concerns are more important than religious requests in sensitive areas like airports. A bench of Justices B P Colabawalla and Firdosh Pooniwalla said prayers cannot be claimed as a right at any place. Authorities told the court that seven other locations were checked, but none were suitable due to congestion, security issues, and airport development plans. Jaishankar dials Iran min amid West Asia tensions

India expressed concern over Iran conflict, urging restraint, civilian safety, protection of Indians, and stability in vital trade and energy routes

NEW DELHI

India expressed serious concern over rising tensions in West Asia as External Affairs Minister S Jaishankar spoke with Iran's Foreign Minister.

External Affairs Minister Subrahmanyam Jaishankar on Thursday held a telephonic conversation with Iran's Foreign Minister Seyed Abbas Araghchi amid the worsening conflict in West Asia. The discussion took place as violence in the region continues to rise, raising concerns about security, trade and the safety of Indian citizens living there.

In a post on X, Jaishankar confirmed that he had spoken with Araghchi during the afternoon. However, the minister did not reveal specific details about what was discussed during the conversation. The call comes at a time when tensions in the region have increased, especially after recent military developments involving the United States, Israel and Iran.

Earlier this week, the Ministry of External Affairs said India was deeply worried about the growing conflict in Iran and the wider Gulf region. The government urged all parties involved to exercise restraint and give priority to the safety of civilians.

India has strong concerns because nearly one crore Indians live and work across the Gulf countries. Their safety and well-being remain a top priority for the government.

Officials also pointed out that the conflict could affect important trade routes and energy supplies that pass through the region.

The ministry warned that any disruption in these routes could seriously impact the Indian economy. It also expressed concern about attacks on merchant ships in nearby waters. In recent days, some Indian nationals have reportedly died or gone missing due to such incidents.

India once again called for dialogue and diplomatic efforts to reduce tensions and bring peace to the region. The government stressed that stability in West Asia is essential because of its importance to global energy markets and the large Indian community living there.

Finnish Prez pays tribute to Gandhi at Rajghat

Stubb also held meetings with Indian leaders to strengthen bilateral ties between India and Finland.

NEW DELHI

Alexander Stubb, President of Finland, paid tribute to Mahatma Gandhi at Rajghat on Thursday during his State visit to India.

The Finnish leader laid a wreath at the memorial of the Father of the Nation, a traditional gesture made by visiting heads of state to honour Gandhi's message of peace and non-violence.

The visit to Rajghat took place shortly after a meeting between Stubb and India's External Affairs Minister Subrahmanyam Jaishankar in New Delhi. During the interaction, the two leaders discussed ways to strengthen cooperation and further deepen relations between the two countries.

Sharing details of the meeting on social media platform X, Jaishankar said he was pleased to meet President Stubb and expressed confidence that the Finnish leader's discussions with Narendra Modi would help strengthen India-Finland relations. He also said he looked forward to Stubb's address at the Raisina Dialogue later in the evening.

President Stubb arrived in New Delhi on Wednesday and was welcomed with a ceremonial reception. According to the Ministry of External Affairs, the Finnish President received a Guard of Honour and was welcomed at the airport by Minister of State for External Affairs V. K. Singh.

The Finnish leader will serve as the Chief Guest and keynote speaker at the 11th edition of the Raisina Dialogue, India's major conference on geopolitics and geo-economics.

During his visit, Stubb is also scheduled to meet Droupadi Murmu and C. P. Radhakrishnan. Later, he will travel to Mumbai to meet Devendra Fadnavis and other leaders, interact with business representatives, and address students at the University of Mumbai.

India and Finland share warm ties based on democratic values, and the visit aims to expand cooperation in trade, technology and global partnerships.

Guj expands free essential medicines list for patients

GANDHINAGAR

The Gujarat government has expanded its Essential Drug List for 2025–26 by adding 150 new medicines to improve free treatment in public hospitals. After the revision, the total number of medicines and medical supplies available in government facilities has increased to 1,479.

State Health Minister Praful Pansheriya announced that the updated list will help ensure better access to medicines for patients across the state. These medicines, along with surgical items and diagnostic supplies, will be provided free of cost through the public healthcare system.

The review of the list was carried out by Gujarat Medical Services Corporation Limited after examining medicines currently used in government hospitals. As part of the process, 150 new medicines were added to the list while 57 medicines that were no longer required were removed.

According to the minister, medicines included in the Essential Drug List are supplied to healthcare centres at every level. This includes primary health centres in rural and urban areas, district hospitals and medical college hospitals.

Pansheriya said providing quality treatment and medicines to every patient is the state government's priority. He added that under the leadership of Chief Minister Bhupendra Patel, the government is committed to ensuring healthcare services reach people in every part of the state. The updated list includes 378 medicines for primary healthcare services and 628 medicines for secondary-level treatment.

The tertiary-level list contains 1,475 medicines used in specialised treatment at major hospitals. The review has also increased medicines available for several disease categories.

Agencies warn of AI propaganda targeting Indian youth

NEW DELHI

Indian intelligence agencies have warned about an online propaganda campaign using artificial intelligence to radicalise youth during the ongoing Iran conflict.

Security agencies in India have raised concerns over a possible radicalisation campaign linked to the ongoing conflict involving Iran, Israel and the United States. Officials say extremist groups are using artificial intelligence to create propaganda videos aimed at influencing young people in different parts of the country. According to intelligence inputs, the campaign started after the reported killing of Iran's Supreme Leader Ali Khamenei, which triggered retaliatory attacks across parts of West Asia. Since then, agencies have noticed online discussions and messaging that appear to encourage radical thinking among youth. An officer from the Intelligence Bureau said that AI-generated videos are being circulated in several Indian languages. These videos are designed to target specific regions. For example, videos meant for Kerala are made in Malayalam, while content targeting Uttar Pradesh is created in Hindi. For audiences in Jammu and Kashmir, videos are prepared in Kashmiri or Koshur.

Officials say that the propaganda is not aimed at any single community but is targeting both Shia and Sunni Muslims. The goal is believed to be encouraging youth to adopt extremist views and possibly carry out attacks in India.

Authorities are also closely monitoring social media platforms such as WhatsApp, Telegram and X, where such messages are being shared. Investigators say influencers running religious or cultural channels may also be used to subtly spread radical messages.

Red Sea crisis hits Coimbatore textile, grinder exports

CHENNAI

Exports from Coimbatore in Tamil Nadu are facing delays as the conflict in West Asia disrupts major sea routes used for global trade. Officials said textile, garment and wet grinder shipments are affected due to problems in shipping through the Red Sea region.

Exporters say the situation worsened after the closure of the Strait of Hormuz, an important shipping route for international cargo movement. Ships that usually travel through the Red Sea and Gulf region are now taking a longer route around the African continent via the Cape of Good Hope.

Industry body Southern India Mills' Association said the change in route has increased shipping time by about 20 to 25 days. This delay is affecting exporters who must meet strict delivery deadlines set by international buyers.

Manufacturers fear that delayed shipments could lead to cancelled orders or requests for heavy discounts from overseas clients. Exporters also expect logistics costs to increase as shipping companies raise freight charges due to longer travel distances and higher fuel usage.

Coimbatore is one of India's major textile hubs. Manufacturers in the region export garments worth nearly $2 billion every year to the United Arab Emirates and about $1 billion to other Gulf countries.

Calcutta HC questions PIL over 'Vande Mataram' protocol

KOLKATA

The Calcutta High Court on Thursday questioned the admissibility of a public interest litigation challenging the Centre's guidelines on the official protocol for performing the national song Vande Mataram.

A division bench headed by Chief Justice Sujoy Paul and Justice Partha Sarathi Sen asked the petitioner to submit logical evidence to justify why the court should hear the PIL. The bench said the petitioner must establish proper grounds before the case can proceed further.

During the hearing, Additional Solicitor General Ashoke Chakraborty raised objections about the maintainability of the PIL. He argued that the petition appeared to be filed for personal interest rather than public interest. Chakraborty also said matters connected to the country's sovereignty and national security, especially those involving the national song, should be handled with caution. He added that if the petitioner fails to prove the basis of the PIL, the court should consider imposing a penalty.

Responding to this, the petitioner's counsel Bikas Ranjan Bhattacharya, a senior advocate and Rajya Sabha member from the Communist Party of India (Marxist), explained the purpose of the petition. He said the challenge was against the Union government's directive issued on January 20 to chief secretaries of all states. The order suggested that the full version of Vande Mataram, consisting of six stanzas and lasting about three minutes and ten seconds, should be performed at major state events.

Bhattacharya argued that historically only two stanzas were accepted as the national song after suggestions by Jawaharlal Nehru and Rabindranath Tagore to maintain communal harmony.

The court directed the petitioner to provide supporting historical evidence. The next hearing has been scheduled for March 23.

Mizoram drug bust: 7 traffickers arrested

AIZAWL

Authorities in Mizoram seized drugs worth nearly Rs 36 crore and arrested seven people near the India–Myanmar border. The Narcotics Control Bureau, with the state excise and intelligence teams, carried out three raids, recovering over 36 kg of methamphetamine tablets and 905 grams of heroin. In Champhai district, police intercepted another consignment valued at Rs 4.88 crore, arresting three more, including Myanmar nationals. Officials said the crackdown followed routine surveillance near key border areas.

India denies US using ports against Iran

NEW DELHI

India has dismissed claims that the United States is using its ports to strike Iran, calling them "fake and false." The statement followed an interview where former US Army Colonel Douglas Macgregor alleged US forces were relying on Indian ports due to destroyed bases elsewhere. The Press Information Bureau (PIB) quickly refuted the claim, clarifying that US naval operations are not using Indian ports. Officials emphasized that the allegation has no basis and is completely untrue.

Stubb exalts India, Modi lauds his 'ironman' spirit

'With an energetic leader like you, we will also achieve a new triathlon of innovation, digital, and sustainability between India and Finland'

NEW DELHI

Visiting Finnish President Alexander Stubb on Thursday praised India's economic growth, democratic values, and strategic importance to Europe.

"We should all become a little bit more Indian," he said during a joint press briefing with Prime Minister Narendra Modi at Hyderabad House.

Stubb highlighted India's pragmatic foreign policy, strategic autonomy, and support for multilateral cooperation as examples the world could learn from. He called India's economic progress an "economic miracle" and admired its fast growth.

PM Modi, in turn, lauded Stubb's personal achievements, particularly his participation in Ironman Triathlons, calling it an inspiration. "With an energetic leader like you, we will also achieve a new triathlon of innovation, digital, and sustainability between India and Finland," Modi said. An Ironman consists of a 3.86 km swim, 180.2 km cycling, and a 42.2 km marathon run, all in one day, making it one of the toughest endurance races globally.

Stubb also noted the shared democratic values between India and Finland, describing India as one of the world's largest and most influential democracies. Recalling his previous visit in 2013, he said India's transformation over the last decade was remarkable. Stubb shared his cultural experience, enjoying the Holi festival during his arrival, despite some playful colour splashes.

Prime Minister Modi welcomed Stubb warmly, calling him a distinguished global leader, intellectual, and chief guest at the Raisina Dialogue. He described Stubb as an experienced and dynamic personality whose visit strengthens India-Finland relations and fosters global cooperation, innovation, and sustainable development.

US seeks Iran stability, offers energy cooperation

NEW DELHI

US Deputy Secretary Christopher Landau calls for a stable Middle East, warns against Iran nuclear threats, and offers India energy support amid ongoing regional tensions.

At the Raisina Dialogue, US Deputy Secretary of State Christopher Landau outlined Washington's goals regarding Iran, stressing the importance of ending the region's threat to global security.

He said the United States did not initially seek military engagement but was forced to act after diplomatic efforts to curb Iran's nuclear program failed.

"The end game is a Middle East that is not a threat to other parts of the world," he said, describing decades of Tehran's hostility toward the US.

Landau warned that an Iran with nuclear weapons could destabilize the world.

He emphasized that Washington's approach included patient diplomacy, setting clear red lines on nuclear development, which Tehran ultimately ignored.

He added that much regional instability could be traced to Iran's leadership and highlighted the need for an international effort to support change while respecting the will of the Iranian people.

Focusing on India, Landau encouraged New Delhi to explore alternative energy sources, proposing the United States as a reliable partner. "We are an energy-rich country, and we want to cooperate with you," he said, assuring India that Washington would address both short-term and long-term energy needs during the ongoing regional conflict.

He stressed that collaboration between the US, India, and other partners could help stabilize the Middle East and secure global energy supplies while fostering a new normal in the region.

Landau concluded that a cooperative approach could ensure regional stability, safeguard energy interests, and prevent Iran from using nuclear capabilities to threaten the world.

They attacked despite entering negotiations: Iran envoy

NEW DELHI

Iranian Ambassador to India, Mohammad Fathali, said on Thursday that Tehran had entered negotiations with the United States despite doubts about American intentions, but was attacked before the agreed timeline. He emphasized that Iran continues to follow the principles of the late Ayatollah Khameni, who guided the country to stand on the "right side of history."

Fathali accused Israel of destabilizing West Asia, alleging that the "Zionist regime" aimed to destroy infrastructure and property across the region. He clarified that Iran does not attack neighboring countries and maintains good relations with them, but warned that US bases in the region could be targeted if necessary. "They know very well where Iran is located. But unfortunately, the Zionist regime wants to disturb and destroy all the region," he said. The envoy highlighted that Iran had successfully shot down three US F-15 fighter jets during the conflict. He stressed that these actions are limited to foreign military bases and not directed at neighboring nations.

Regarding India, Fathali said that Iran is currently not in contact with the Indian government about the ongoing tensions. "No, we have no negotiation. We have no messages… You can ask from the Indian side," he added. He also mourned the loss of Ayatollah Khameni, describing him as a guiding figure whose advice shaped Iran's foreign policy approach. Fathali said the country remains committed to defending its principles and responding appropriately to any attacks while pursuing its strategic objectives in the region.

Russian Ambassador to India pitches for faster resolution

NEW DELHI

Amid the escalating West Asia conflict, Russian Ambassador to India Denis Alipov on Thursday emphasized that the situation can only be resolved through negotiations. "Resolution is always through negotiations. This conflict should be resolved as soon as possible," he said while speaking to the media.

Alipov reiterated Russia's condemnation of the US-Israel strikes, which Moscow described as a "premeditated and unprovoked act of aggression" targeting a government that resisted foreign pressure. He added that it is India's choice where to source its oil supplies, affirming Russia's willingness to continue supplying oil to India.

Meanwhile, Iran's Foreign Minister Seyed Abbas Araghchi warned that the United States will regret sinking the Iranian frigate IRIS Dena in international waters. The vessel, carrying nearly 130 sailors, was attacked by a US submarine in the Indian Ocean. Araghchi called the act an "atrocity at sea" and criticized the precedent it sets.The attack was confirmed by US Secretary of War Pete Hegseth, who described the sinking as the first torpedo strike on an enemy ship since World War II. US Chairman of the Joint Chiefs, General Dan Caine, called it a demonstration of America's global military reach. The conflict has further escalated tensions, with Iran threatening to target Israel's Dimona nuclear site if the US or Israel attempts to overthrow the Islamic Republic. Israel's Defence Minister Israel Katz has stated that any new Iranian leadership installed externally would be a legitimate target.

REAFFIRMS OIL SUPPLY TO INDIA

Alipov called for a negotiated resolution to the ongoing conflict. "The resolution is always through negotiations. The conflict should stop as soon as possible," he told reporters in New Delhi. Alipov stressed that it is India's choice to decide on oil suppliers, even as global fuel prices rise due to threats to the Strait of Hormuz. "It's up to India to decide on supplies and supply sources. We have always been open towards supplying oil to India," he said. When asked about the war's duration, he said, "I have no idea. This is a question to the US." On February 28, Russia condemned the joint US-Israel strikes on Iran as "unprovoked," urging a return to political and diplomatic solutions. The Russian Foreign Ministry confirmed a phone conversation between Foreign Minister Sergei Lavrov and Iran's Seyed Abbas Araghchi, in which Iran detailed steps to repel the attacks and called for an urgent UN Security Council meeting. Lavrov condemned the strikes as violations of international law, highlighting risks to regional and global stability. He affirmed Russia's readiness, including within the UN, to facilitate peaceful solutions based on international law, mutual respect, and balanced interests.

Nitish Kumar files RS nomination amid tensions in Bihar

Bihar Chief Minister Nitish Kumar on Thursday filed his nomination papers for the Rajya Sabha elections, sparking political debates across the state.

Along with him, four other candidates from the ruling alliance — Nitin Nabin, Shivesh Kumar Ram, and Upendra Kushwaha — submitted their nominations the same day.

The event was attended by senior National Democratic Alliance leaders, including Union Home Minister Amit Shah, who traveled from New Delhi to Patna. However, the move triggered unrest among some Janata Dal (United) workers. Supporters gathered outside Nitish Kumar's residence, raising slogans against the BJP and alleging a plan to push him out of active state politics. Some shouted "Down with Amit Shah," accusing the BJP of weakening JD(U) through "Operation Lotus."

Earlier, a Bihar BJP minister faced protests and had to leave the area due to the commotion. JD(U) workers claimed pressure was being applied to move Nitish Kumar to national politics, suggesting the BJP wants direct control over state leadership ahead of the upcoming Assembly elections.

Leader of Opposition Tejashwi Yadav criticized the nomination, saying public sentiment opposes leadership change. He alleged that the BJP aims to sideline Nitish Kumar, citing similar strategies against allies in Maharashtra, Tamil Nadu, and Punjab. Tejashwi questioned the decision to send Nitish to the Rajya Sabha without wider public consultation.

The nomination marks a major shift in Bihar's political scene. While NDA leaders projected unity at the event, protests from JD(U) workers and reactions from the opposition indicate rising tensions. Analysts suggest that the state may see increased political activity in the coming weeks as parties prepare for the next elections, with Nitish Kumar's Rajya Sabha entry playing a central role in shaping alliances and strategies.

The event provides a platform for exchanging ideas, strengthening multilateral ties, and building collaborative solutions.

SACRED RITUAL

ELABORATE ARRANGEMENTS IN PLACE FOR MAHA KUMBHABHISHEKAM

VIJAYAWADA

The district administration has put in place elaborate preparations for the Maha Kumbhabhishekam of Sri Durga Malleswara Swamivarla Devasthanam atop Indrakeeladri, scheduled from March 6 to 8.

The sacred ritual, held once every 12 years, is expected to draw lakhs of devotees from Andhra Pradesh and neighbouring states. A team of officials, including District Collector G Lakshmisha, Temple Chairman Borra Radhakrishna, NTR District Police Commissioner S V Rajashekhar Babu, Municipal Commissioner Dhyanachandra H M, and Temple Executive Officer V K Seena Nayak, conducted a thorough inspection of facilities. They reviewed works at Vimana Gopuram, yagashala, prasadam counters, and ghat road amenities, directing engineering teams to complete final touches on time.

Collector Lakshmisha assured that adequate arrangements for prasadam distribution, parking, and luggage counters have been made, with priority for common devotees. "Drones and AI-based monitoring systems will help manage the crowds effectively," he said.

Police Commissioner Rajashekhar Babu stated that 1,500 police personnel will be deployed to ensure security, with daily footfall expected between one lakh and 1.5 lakh devotees. An Integrated Command Control Centre will operate from March 5 to coordinate all departments.

Temple Chairman Radhakrishna said rituals will be conducted under the guidance of Shankara Vijayendra Saraswati of Kanchi Kamakoti Peetham. He added that drinking water, milk, buttermilk, and biscuits will be provided for devotees. Executive Officer Seena Nayak noted that arjitha sevas have been cancelled, and Antaralayam darshan will be suspended on the third day to facilitate the smooth conduct of rituals.

With these meticulous arrangements, authorities aim to ensure a safe and orderly Maha Kumbhabhishekam experience for all devotees.

Middle powers form new tech alliances

Australia, Canada, and India are forming a strategic technology partnership to strengthen innovation and cooperation globally

In response to growing global tensions, middle powers are seeking new ways to navigate an increasingly fragmented world.

An issue brief by the Institute for Security & Development Policy highlights the Australia-Canada-India Technology and Innovation (ACITI) Partnership as a key example.

The partnership focuses on emerging and critical technologies such as artificial intelligence, quantum computing, semiconductors, and clean energy systems.

By combining their resources, these countries aim to create resilient supply chains and reduce reliance on dominant global powers. India's digital economy and tech workforce, Canada's research ecosystem, and Australia's expertise in critical minerals complement each other. Analysts describe this collaboration as a "tech triangle" capable of influencing technology governance and standards in the Indo-Pacific region and beyond.

The brief explains that the global system is shifting from gradual transition to sharp ruptures, with economic interdependence increasingly used as a strategic tool rather than a stabilizing force. Middle powers are choosing cooperative frameworks over protectionism to maintain strategic autonomy while boosting economic resilience.

Experts note that the partnership's success depends on strong political commitment, policy coordination, and sustained investment in research and development. If effectively implemented, this tech triangle could serve as a model for other middle-power alliances adapting to the changing geopolitical landscape.

The initiative reflects broader efforts to diversify global technology networks amid US-China rivalry and rising protectionism. By working together, Australia, Canada, and India aim to shape the future of technology governance, strengthen innovation, and build security in key technological sectors.

'Keep going until the end': US reaffirms support to Israel

The statement came during a call between US Secretary of Defence Pete Hegseth and Israeli Defence Minister Israel Katz amid escalating tensions with Iran

JERUSALEM

US Secretary of Defence Pete Hegseth told Israel to "continue to the end, we are with you," affirming full support for the country's defense.

The statement came during a call between Hegseth and Israeli Defence Minister Israel Katz. Katz expressed condolences for six US service members killed in Iranian attacks and thanked Hegseth and US President Trump for their strong support and military cooperation.

Katz highlighted the joint efforts between Israel and the US to counter Iranian threats. He emphasized that Israel will continue protecting US troops in the region while defending its citizens from Iranian missile attacks. Hegseth praised the Israel Defense Forces' capabilities and the unprecedented military collaboration with the US, reinforcing their commitment to shared objectives.

Meanwhile, tensions escalated as Iran threatened Israel's Dimona nuclear site if attempts were made to overthrow the Islamic Republic. Iran's Revolutionary Guard Corps launched the nineteenth wave of Operation 'True Promise 4,' a missile and drone offensive targeting Israeli and American positions. According to Tehran, more than seven advanced radar systems were destroyed, significantly impairing regional surveillance.

The IRGC stated that these strikes were a response to "unprovoked aggression" by Israel and the US and are part of ongoing efforts to deter further military actions. Katz had earlier warned that any new Iranian leadership would be a legitimate target for elimination, reflecting the intensifying regional standoff.

Analysts note that US-Israel coordination has significantly shaped military dynamics in the Middle East, signaling heightened preparedness and mutual strategic commitment amid escalating threats from Iran.

Iran calls torpedoing of ship by US an 'atrocity'

Tehran: Iran's Foreign Minister Seyed Abbas Araghchi condemned the United States for sinking the Iranian vessel IRIS Dena in the Indian Ocean, warning that Washington would regret the precedent set. Araghchi described the attack as an "atrocity at sea," noting that the frigate, carrying nearly 130 sailors as a guest of India's Navy, was struck in international waters without warning. The incident was confirmed by US Secretary of War Pete Hegseth, who said an American submarine fired a torpedo to sink IRIS Dena. Hegseth highlighted that it was the first time since World War II that a US Navy submarine had sunk an enemy ship using a single Mark 48 torpedo. General Dan Caine, US Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, called the operation a demonstration of America's global reach. In response, Iran threatened to target Israel's Dimona nuclear site if attempts are made to topple the Islamic Republic.

India urges citizens in UAE to 'remain vigilant'

Abu Dhabi: The Indian Embassy in the UAE on Thursday issued a fresh advisory urging Indian nationals to remain vigilant, calm, and follow safety guidelines amid ongoing security concerns in the region. The advisory comes as airspace and regular flight operations in the UAE remain temporarily suspended, although limited non-scheduled flights to India have started in coordination with local authorities. Stranded Indian nationals can contact airlines for assistance. The Embassy emphasized that Indian citizens should adhere to safety protocols issued by UAE authorities and stay updated through official advisories. It confirmed that the Embassy in Abu Dhabi, the Consulate in Dubai, and outsourced passport, visa, and consular services continue to operate normally. Helpline numbers were also provided for urgent queries. For those whose visas have expired after February 28 and who are unable to depart, the UAE Federal Authority for Identity, Citizenship, Custom & Port Authority (ICP) has announced a waiver of overstay fines, including for tourist and visit visas. The advisory highlighted that the Indian government is closely monitoring developments and prioritizing the safety and well-being of its citizens abroad. Embassy and Consulate officials are in constant contact with UAE authorities and community leaders to ensure Indian nationals receive necessary support.

China to send special envoy amid West Asia conflict

Beijing: China confirmed on Thursday that it will send Special Envoy Zhai Jun to the Middle East to help de-escalate tensions amid the ongoing regional conflict. Foreign Ministry spokesperson Mao Ning said dialogue and negotiation are the only effective solutions and that continued escalation serves no country's interests. Mao emphasized that China is "gravely concerned" about the situation and is maintaining communication with all parties involved, while working with the international community to build consensus. "War and force cannot solve issues permanently. Political and diplomatic settlements must be upheld," she said, adding that China will actively engage with all sides to reduce hostilities. The announcement comes after a joint US-Israel strike in Iran killed Supreme Leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei and other senior figures, prompting retaliatory drone and missile attacks from Tehran across multiple Arab countries. The conflict has widened as Iran targeted American military bases and Israeli assets, while Israel continued strikes on Iran and expanded operations into Lebanon against Hezbollah. Chinese Foreign Minister Wang Yi has held phone talks with counterparts from Russia, Iran, Oman, France, Israel, Saudi Arabia, and the UAE. During discussions, he urged adherence to the United Nations Charter, rejected arbitrary use of force, and called for immediate halts to military operations.

China ups military spending, lowers growth target

BEIJING

China has announced plans to increase military spending by 7 per cent while lowering its economic growth target to 4–5 per cent this year.

The defense budget will reach around USD 275 billion, marking the 11th consecutive year of single-digit increases. Although slower than last year's 7.2 per cent rise, the spending remains significant, reflecting China's ongoing focus on strengthening its military capabilities.

Premier Li Qiang presented the government work report to the National People's Congress at the Great Hall of the People in Beijing. The report also set a consumer price index increase of about 2 per cent, the creation of 12 million new urban jobs, and a 10 per cent growth in research and development spending. Chinese President Xi Jinping and top leadership attended the session, which will formalize the 15th Five-Year Plan.

The defense budget growth is modest relative to key global indicators, including GDP share, per capita spending, and spending per military personnel, according to state media. Analysts note that the slower rise may reflect economic pressures as China's long-term growth is projected to decline to 3–4 per cent by 2030. The announcement comes ahead of US President Donald Trump's upcoming visit to China. Last month, Xi dismissed top military officials, including Zhang Youxia and three retired generals, signaling ongoing leadership changes in the People's Liberation Army.

US Department of Defense reports suggest actual Chinese defense spending may be higher than officially declared, with 2024 estimates ranging between USD 304 billion and USD 377 billion.

Khalistani critic Nancy Grewal stabbed to death

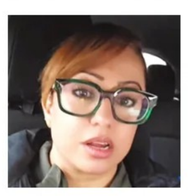
Nancy Grewal, a well-known social media influencer in Canada's Punjabi community, was stabbed to death at her residence on March 3. Emergency responders found her with severe stab wounds shortly before 9:30 p.m. She was rushed to a hospital but died shortly after arriving. Grewal's murder has shocked the Windsor-LaSalle community and online followers.



Grewal gained prominence for her outspoken commentary on Punjab, Indian politics, and diaspora issues. She frequently criticized Khalistani movements and leaders, including Gurpatwant Singh Pannun of Sikhs for Justice. She accused such activists of spreading division, defaming Sikh institutions, and misusing gurdwaras for separatist propaganda. Grewal encouraged her audience to address concerns directly in India rather than supporting extremist agendas from abroad.

The LaSalle Police Service described the case as an "isolated" incident. Investigators are reviewing the scene and seeking assistance from neighbors, requesting any video surveillance that could help trace the attackers. A police statement offered condolences to Grewal's family and reassured the public that a thorough investigation is underway.

'INDIA CHAMPIONS CULTURAL RIGHTS AND HERITAGE PROTECTION'

GENEVA

At the 61st session of the United Nations Human Rights Council, India's efforts to safeguard and promote cultural rights were highlighted.

Sai Sampath Mettu, CEO of the ECO FAWN Society, delivered a video statement during the interactive dialogue with the Special Rapporteur on Cultural Rights, praising India's approach to culture as a public good and a tool for peace and social cohesion.

Mettu emphasized that India actively engages in global cultural discussions to strengthen participation, protect heritage, and empower artists. The intervention noted India's role at UNESCO Mondiacult 2025, where the country raised key issues including cultural rights, artificial intelligence's influence on cultural production, and culture's role in promoting peace. India also advocated for a dedicated global culture goal in the post-2030 development agenda to integrate cultural sustainability into international policies. The statement highlighted India's efforts to protect intellectual property rights for artists and creators, ensuring they receive recognition and fair compensation. It also recognized initiatives to preserve tangible and intangible cultural traditions under UNESCO frameworks, demonstrating India's commitment to international cooperation and wider access to culture.

NEPAL GOES FOR FRESH POLLS

Fight for good governance will go on: Nepal Gen Z

KATHMANDU

Nepal's Gen Z activists say their fight for accountability and good governance will continue even after today's mid-term elections.

The youth-led movement of 2025 toppled the K.P. Sharma Oli government following protests against corruption, nepotism, and a government ban on social media. While the election will usher in a new government, young leaders like Amrita Ban, 23, assert that the agenda for transparency and justice remains active. Standing before the burnt facade of the state road department, she clarified that much of the vandalism was caused by fringe political elements, not the protesters themselves.

The 2025 demonstrations began peacefully but escalated after police used lethal force on September 8, 2025, leaving 19 dead. Rajat Das Shreshtha, 25, a musician and activist, said Gen Z will monitor the new government, supporting positive actions but continuing to demand accountability. Many youth voters are not tied to any party, with some awaiting alternatives outside the existing political system.

Activists are also pushing for the release of the enquiry report on the September violence, fair compensation for victims' families, voter registration, and systemic reforms to reduce corruption. Journalist Bikas Acharya compared Nepal's movement with Bangladesh's 2024 protests, noting that Nepal's youth wisely chose to work with existing parties, maintaining mass influence while avoiding political obligations.

Several young voters reported backing individual candidates rather than parties. Public figures like cine star Reecha Sharma praised the Gen Z movement for raising political awareness among Nepalese youth and elders alike.

Walloping, Not a Choke: Conrad Blunt After South Africa's Semifinal Exit

KOLKATA

South Africa head coach Shukri Conrad did not mince words after his team's crushing nine-wicket defeat to New Zealand in the ICC Men's T20 World Cup semifinal, insisting it was "not a choke but a walloping".

South Africa's exit added yet another chapter to their long list of heartbreaks in ICC tournaments. Chasing a competitive 170, New Zealand stormed home in just 12.5 overs on Wednesday night, riding on a stunning batting display by their openers.

Finn Allen smashed an unbeaten 100 off just 33 balls — the fastest century in the history of the tournament — while Tim Seifert blasted 58 off 33 balls as the Kiwi duo dismantled the South African bowling attack with remarkable ease. Responding to suggestions that South Africa had once again "choked" in a knockout match, Conrad dismissed the label bluntly.

"I don't know if tonight was a choke. I thought it was a bloody walloping," Conrad said. "In order for you to choke, you must have had a sniff in the game. We didn't have a sniff."

Using colourful Afrikaans expressions, he described the defeat as a "snotklap", loosely meaning a heavy smack or a hiding that comes unexpectedly.

Earlier, South Africa struggled to build momentum after being sent in to bat. New Zealand's Cole McConchie struck early, removing Quinton de Kock (10) and Ryan Rickelton (0) in successive deliveries.

The middle order also failed to capitalise, with Aiden Markram (18), David Miller (6) and Dewald Brevis (34) unable to accelerate.

A late surge from Marco Jansen, who remained unbeaten on 55 off 30 balls, and Tristan Stubbs (29) helped South Africa post a respectable total.

Conrad admitted New Zealand had simply outplayed his side. "They exploited the conditions well and strangled us up front.

A lot didn't go right tonight, but that was probably because they were so good," he said.

Despite the painful defeat, Conrad said he remained proud of his team's remarkable run in the tournament, where they won seven consecutive matches before the semifinal.

"Not many people gave us a chance before the World Cup. We played some exceptional cricket. But right now, that's no consolation," he said.

Government considers interim committee to rebuild cricket after disappointing T20 WC.

COLOMBO

Sri Lanka's disappointing campaign in the ICC Men's T20 World Cup could trigger a major overhaul of the country's cricket administration, with Sports Minister Sunil Kumara Gamage indicating that an interim committee may be formed to "rebuild" the sport.

Sri Lanka endured a poor tournament, crashing out after losing all their Super Eight matches. The team had also suffered an earlier setback in the preliminary round, losing to lower-ranked Zimbabwe — a result that further intensified criticism of the team and the administration.

Addressing reporters on Thursday, Gamage said discussions were underway with the International Cricket Council (ICC) about transferring the administration of Sri Lanka Cricket (SLC) to an interim committee.

"Discussions are underway with the ICC to hand over the administration of SLC to an interim committee to rebuild the sport," he said.

The move comes amid growing public anger over the team's performances. Last week, protesters gathered outside the SLC headquarters demanding the resignation of the current administration led by chairman Shammi Silva, whose tenure runs until May 2027.

Gamage said the government was proceeding cautiously and in consultation with the ICC to avoid any sanctions for political interference in cricket governance.

"We can't risk having a ban again from the ICC, so everything must be done in concurrence with them," he noted.

Sri Lanka had previously faced an ICC suspension in 2024 after the then Sports Minister Roshan Ranasinghe dismissed Silva over corruption allegations.

The suspension led to the relocation of the 2025 Under-19 World Cup from Sri Lanka to South Africa due to concerns over government interference.

According to Sri Lanka's Sports Law of 1973, the Sports Minister has the authority to discipline and intervene in sports bodies when required.

Gamage said the government's goal was to restore Sri Lankan cricket to its former glory, recalling the era when the national team was among the world's best. Sri Lanka won the T20 World Cup in 2014 and finished runners-up in two earlier editions.

Meanwhile, captain Dasun Shanaka urged supporters to ease criticism of players, admitting the team had failed to meet expectations.

"We feel sorry because we haven't given our fans anything to be happy about," Shanaka said after the team's exit from the tournament.

Djokovic Says He Will Keep Playing As Long As He Has 'Fire and Flare'

INDIAN WELLS

Novak Djokovic says he has no immediate plans to retire from tennis, insisting he will continue competing as long as he retains the motivation, quality and passion for the sport.

The 38-year-old Serbian legend believes he is still capable of challenging the world's best players, pointing to his impressive run at the Australian Open earlier this year as proof that he remains a major contender on the biggest stages.

Djokovic produced one of the tournament's standout matches when he defeated defending champion Jannik Sinner in a gripping five-set semifinal before eventually losing to world number one Carlos Alcaraz in the final.

Reflecting on that campaign, the 24-time Grand Slam champion said the performances reinforced his belief that he can still compete at the highest level.

"It was an incredible feeling to beat Sinner in five sets in one of the epic matches I've played in recent times in Australia," Djokovic told reporters at the Indian Wells Masters in California.

"Then I had another great match with Carlos, who was just too good in the end. For me, that was a phenomenal result and it proved to me and others that I can still compete with the best players in the world."

Djokovic added that as long as he maintains the competitive drive that has defined his career, he sees no reason to step away from the game.

"My logic is simple — why not keep going as long as I have that fire and flair and the motivation to compete," he said.

The Serbian star, currently ranked world number three, said he now enjoys greater flexibility in managing his tournament schedule. Rather than playing a packed calendar, he focuses mainly on the four Grand Slam tournaments along with select warm-up events.

One of the competitions he continues to prioritise is the Indian Wells tournament, where he is a five-time champion and remains a crowd favourite.

"I still enjoy the thrill of competition," Djokovic said. "I enjoy going out there in front of fans and fighting for victories. As long as I feel competitive and motivated, I'll keep playing."

Arsenal Extend Premier League Lead as Manchester City Drop Points

LONDON

Arsenal F.C. strengthened their grip on the Premier League title race after a hard-fought 1–0 win over Brighton & Hove Albion F.C., while defending champions Manchester City F.C. were held to a dramatic 2–2 draw by Nottingham Forest F.C.

The victory extended Arsenal's lead at the top of the table to seven points, putting them firmly in control of the title race as the season heads into its decisive phase. The Gunners, who have not won the English league since 2004, remain favourites to lift the trophy but still face pressure from Manchester City, who have a game in hand.

At the Amex Stadium, Bukayo Saka marked his 300th appearance for Arsenal with the decisive goal in the ninth minute. Cutting in from the right flank, the England international fired a shot from the edge of the box that deflected off Brighton midfielder Carlos Baleba before slipping past goalkeeper Bart Verbruggen.

Brighton dominated possession and created several chances, but Arsenal's defence held firm to secure a tense victory.

Arsenal manager Mikel Arteta praised his players for grinding out the result after a demanding few weeks. "This was a really difficult one after everything we've been through recently," Arteta said. "Every Premier League game offers different challenges. The effort from the boys was astronomical."

Arsenal edge Brighton while Manchester City slip in thrilling draw against Forest

Meanwhile, Manchester City missed the chance to stay closer to the leaders after twice surrendering their advantage against Nottingham Forest.

City opened the scoring through January signing Antoine Semenyo, but Forest responded when Morgan Gibbs-White produced a moment of brilliance with a backheel finish in the 56th minute. Rodri restored City's lead with a header from Rayan Aït-Nouri's corner, only for Elliot Anderson to equalise again with a superb strike that secured a crucial point for Forest.

City manager Pep Guardiola remained philosophical about the result, noting that plenty of matches remain in the title race.

Elsewhere, interim boss Michael Carrick suffered his first defeat in charge of Manchester United F.C. as they lost 2–1 to Newcastle United F.C. at St James' Park despite playing against 10 men for much of the match.

In another key result, Chelsea F.C. moved into the Champions League race after João Pedro scored a hat-trick in a 4–1 win over Aston Villa F.C., lifting the London club to fifth place in the standings.

NORRIS

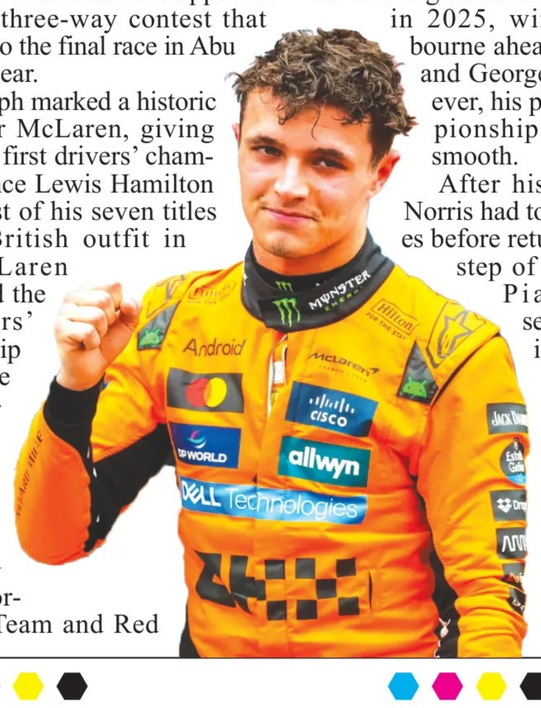
Hungrier Than Ever to Defend Formula One World Title

MELBOURNE

Lando Norris says last season's dramatic Formula One championship battle has only increased his determination to defend his crown as the new campaign begins this weekend.

The Formula One world champion heads into the season-opening Australian Grand Prix with renewed motivation after edging out teammate Oscar Piastri and Max Verstappen in a gripping three-way contest that went down to the final race in Abu Dhabi last year.

The triumph marked a historic moment for McLaren, giving the team its first drivers' championship since Lewis Hamilton won the first of his seven titles with the British outfit in 2008. McLaren also secured the constructors' championship during the same campaign.



Despite expectations that Mercedes-AMG Petronas Formula One Team and Red Bull Racing may start the new season slightly ahead in performance, Norris insisted he was not concerned about where McLaren stands at the beginning of the year.

"I don't think we're starting on the back foot. Even if you're second, third or fourth quickest, that's still a very good position to start," Norris said ahead of the Melbourne race.

The 26-year-old began his title-winning season in perfect fashion in 2025, winning in Melbourne ahead of Verstappen and George Russell. However, his path to the championship was far from smooth.

After his early victory, Norris had to wait seven races before returning to the top step of the podium, as Piastri briefly seized momentum in the title race before Verstappen also entered the fight. The championship eventually developed into one of the most competitive battles in recent years.

Ankita Raina, Desai Advance in ITF W35 Kalaburagi; Local Hope Soha Sadiq Exits

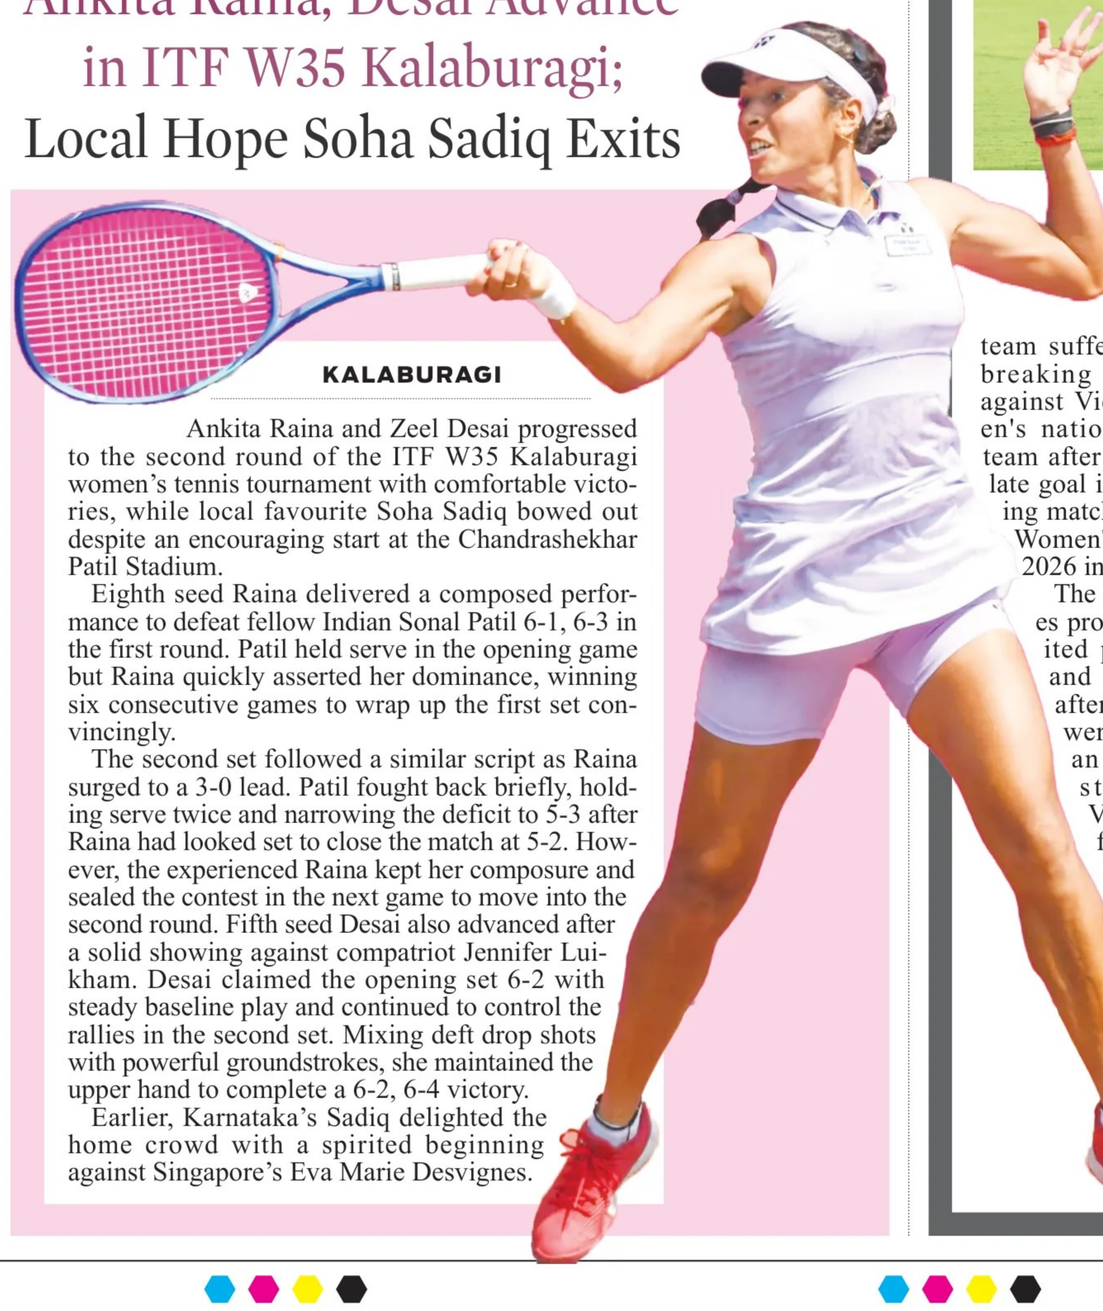
KALABURAGI

Ankita Raina and Zeel Desai progressed to the second round of the ITF W35 Kalaburagi women's tennis tournament with comfortable victories, while local favourite Soha Sadiq bowed out despite an encouraging start at the Chandrashekhar Patil Stadium.

Eighth seed Raina delivered a composed performance to defeat fellow Indian Sonal Patil 6-1, 6-3 in the first round. Patil held serve in the opening game but Raina quickly asserted her dominance, winning six consecutive games to wrap up the first set convincingly.

The second set followed a similar script as Raina surged to a 3-0 lead. Patil fought back briefly, holding serve twice and narrowing the deficit to 5-3 after Raina had looked set to close the match at 5-2. However, the experienced Raina kept her composure and sealed the contest in the next game to move into the second round. Fifth seed Desai also advanced after a solid showing against compatriot Jennifer Luikham. Desai claimed the opening set 6-2 with steady baseline play and continued to control the rallies in the second set. Mixing deft drop shots with powerful groundstrokes, she maintained the upper hand to complete a 6-2, 6-4 victory.

Earlier, Karnataka's Sadiq delighted the home crowd with a spirited beginning against Singapore's Eva Marie Desvignes.



India Women Suffer Injury-Time Defeat Against Vietnam in Asian Cup Opener

PERTH

India women's national football team suffered a heartbreaking 2–1 defeat against Vietnam women's national football team after conceding a late goal in their opening match of the AFC Women's Asian Cup 2026 in Perth.

The Blue Tigresses produced a spirited performance and fought back after trailing but were undone by an injury-time strike from Vietnamese forward Nguyen Thi Van Su, who scored both goals for her side. Vietnam dominated possession in the early stages, forcing Indian goalkeeper Panthoi Chanu into action with a series of saves.

India's first clear opportunity came in the eighth minute when Dangmei Grace controlled a high ball and set up Sangita Basfore, but her half-volley was comfortably collected by Vietnam goalkeeper Tran Thi Kim Thanh.

Vietnam nearly took the lead in the 14th minute when Nguyen Thi Bich Thuy struck the crossbar after capitalising on a misplaced pass by Sangita.

The breakthrough finally came in the 30th minute when Van Su ran onto a pass from Thai Thi Thao and curled a precise shot from inside the penalty area to give Vietnam the lead.

India responded positively in the second half after head coach Amelia Valverde made key substitutions, introducing debutant Sanfida Nongrum and Rimpa Haldar.

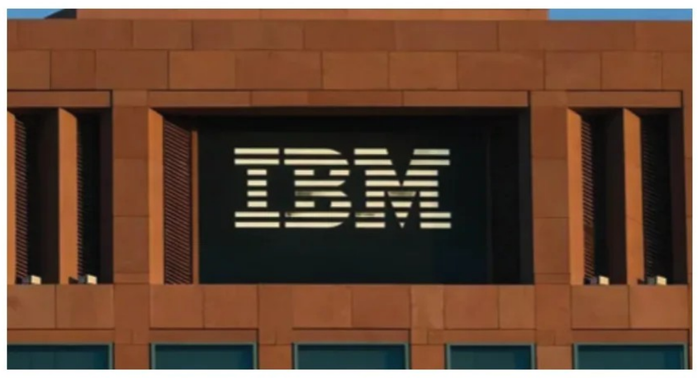
India is at a pivotal moment in its AI journey, and infrastructure will define the pace and scale at which organisations can innovate'

NEW DELHI



Leading technology company IBM has launched its first Infrastructure Innovation Centre in India to support faster growth of artificial intelligence and advanced computing solutions.

The new facility has been set up at the company's India Systems Development Lab campus and is expected to help businesses design stronger digital infrastructure for the future.

The centre, named Sangam Infrastructure Innovation Centre, will work as a collaborative engineering hub where experts, technology partners and companies can jointly develop new AI-based solutions. Systems architects, infrastructure specialists and engineers from IBM will work closely with clients, software developers and global technology partners to build practical tools powered by artificial intelligence.

By bringing hybrid cloud technology, modern infrastructure platforms and AI capabilities together in one place, the centre aims to speed up the development of secure and scalable enterprise systems. MUMBAI

Maharashtra's economy is expected to grow strongly in the financial year 2025-26, with a projected growth rate of 7.9%, slightly higher than India's overall expected growth rate of 7.6%.

The positive outlook was presented in the State Economic Survey tabled in the Assembly on Thursday by Minister of State for Finance Ashish Jaiswal.

According to the survey, Maharashtra continues to remain one of the main economic drivers of the country. The state's nominal Gross State Domestic Product (GSDP) at current prices is expected to grow by about 10.4%.

IRAN-ISRAEL CONFLICT MAY SHAKE PAK ECONOMY

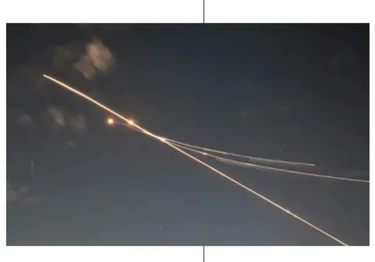
NEW DELHI

Rising tensions in West Asia following the reported killing of Ali Khamenei in strikes involving the United States and Israel could have serious economic consequences for Pakistan, analysts have warned.

According to an article published by China Daily, the conflict has created deep concern in Pakistan, which shares close economic and regional links with countries in West Asia.

Former Pakistan foreign secretary Salman Bashir said the war could reshape the entire Middle East and impact the global economy. He warned that the conflict might last for a long time and its geopolitical effects could be severe.

Following the news of Khamenei's killing, protests broke out in several parts of Pakistan. Demonstrators expressed anger against the United States, leading to violent clashes in some cities. Reports say at least 25 people were killed and many others injured during the unrest.



Large protests were reported near the US Consulate in Karachi, where demonstrators attempted to enter the building. Similar demonstrations were also seen near the American consulate in Lahore, though police managed to control the situation.

Pakistan Prime Minister Shehbaz Sharif expressed condolences to Iran and its people. In a message posted on social media, he said Pakistan stood with Iran in its moment of grief and also raised concerns over violations of international law.

Experts believe that even though Pakistan is not directly involved in the conflict, the country could still face serious economic challenges. Rising fuel prices, higher electricity costs and disruptions in trade could affect daily life.

Analysts also warned that many Pakistanis working in Gulf countries may face job losses if the crisis continues, which could reduce the flow of money sent back home.

Mideast tensions may slightly impact Indian economy

NEW DELHI

Rising tensions in the Middle East may have only a limited impact on India's economy, the rupee, and growth, according to a report released on Thursday.

The report said that while global uncertainty may increase, India's strong economic fundamentals could help the country remain stable.

According to the report, if crude oil prices rise by 10 percent above the baseline estimate of the Reserve Bank of India, inflation may increase slightly by around 30 basis points. However, the effect on the rupee and overall economic growth is expected to remain small.

A five percent fall in the rupee's value may push inflation up by about 35 basis points, but it could also support GDP growth by nearly 25 basis points.

Experts believe that the rupee's depreciation may remain limited due to timely foreign exchange interventions by the central bank. If tensions in the region ease, the local currency is likely to stabilise again.

India's economic indicators remain strong, with foreign exchange reserves exceeding 700 billion dollars and manageable trade and fiscal deficits.

Gold, silver surge amid rising global tensions

NEW DELHI

Gold and silver prices witnessed a sharp rise on Thursday as investors rushed toward safe-haven assets amid escalating tensions in the Middle East. The surge came as fears of rising inflation and disruptions to global energy supplies increased uncertainty in financial markets. On the Multi Commodity Exchange of India, gold April futures rose 0.31 percent to ₹1,62,018 per 10 grams, while silver May futures climbed 1.50 percent to ₹2,69,551 per kilogram during intra-day trading. Earlier in the day, silver prices jumped more than 3 percent and gold gained over 1 percent before easing slightly due to profit booking by traders. In global markets, spot silver increased to $84.43 per ounce and spot gold moved up to $5,176.69 per ounce. Analysts linked the rally to the ongoing conflict involving United States, Israel, and Iran, which has raised fears about energy supply disruptions, particularly around the Strait of Hormuz.

AI safeguard dispute sparks Pentagon–Anthropic tensions

SAN FRANCISCO

A dispute between artificial intelligence firm Anthropic and the United States Department of Defense has drawn attention from major technology companies and investors, who are urging both sides to resolve the conflict over AI safeguards.

The issue began after the Pentagon considered labeling Anthropic a "supply-chain risk," a move that could restrict the use of its technology by government contractors. The warning has raised concerns across the technology industry because such a designation could affect the company's business far beyond government contracts.

A leading technology trade body, the Information Technology Industry Council, whose members include Amazon, Nvidia, Apple and OpenAI, expressed concern over the possible move. The group warned that the decision could have wide implications for the growing AI sector.

The disagreement centres on how military agencies can use artificial intelligence systems. The Pentagon wants AI firms to accept an "all-lawful use" clause for their technology. However, Anthropic has refused to remove certain restrictions on its AI systems.

The company has maintained that its chatbot Claude AI should not be used for autonomous weapons or mass domestic surveillance.

Anthropic chief executive Dario Amodei has reportedly discussed the issue with major investors, including Andy Jassy of Amazon. Venture capital firms and other investors are also exploring ways to reduce tensions between the company and the government.

India leads Asia Pacific office leasing demand

BENGALURU

India has emerged as the biggest contributor to office leasing demand in the Asia Pacific region in 2025, accounting for nearly 68 percent of total leasing activity, according to a report.

The study highlighted India's growing importance in the regional commercial real estate market.

The report, titled "Asia Pacific Office Market Insights February 2026," stated that total office leasing across 11 major markets in the Asia Pacific region reached about 9.8 million square metres in 2025. This represents an 11 percent increase compared to the previous year. Strong demand for Grade A office spaces in countries like India, China, and Japan played a major role in this growth.

In addition to high demand, new office supply also increased significantly across the region. The report noted that supply rose by 19 percent during the year, reaching about 9.6 million square metres. Markets such as India, China, and Singapore together contributed around 82 percent of the new supply in 2025.

Experts believe India's strong economic growth, expanding global capability centres, and rising corporate demand for modern workspaces are driving this trend.

POSITIVE MOMENTUM

Asian markets rise despite ongoing war

TOKYO

Asian stock markets recorded strong gains on Thursday as investors cautiously returned to riskier assets despite the ongoing conflict in the Middle East. Markets recovered after earlier losses, with technology stocks and major indices showing positive momentum across the region.

South Korea's benchmark KOSPI led the rally, surging 11.2 percent and recovering from steep losses seen in the previous trading session. Japan's Nikkei 225 also rose by about 2.5 percent, reflecting improved investor confidence after a rebound on Wall Street. The broader MSCI Asia-Pacific Index outside Japan jumped nearly 3.9 percent. Despite the market recovery, concerns remain high due to the ongoing tensions involving Iran, Israel, and the United States. Fresh missile attacks and military responses have raised fears of disruptions to global energy supplies and transport networks. Rising oil prices, which have gained around 16 percent since the conflict began, are also contributing to inflation worries worldwide.

In the commodities market, gold prices climbed as investors sought safer investments during uncertain times. Meanwhile, the U.S. dollar strengthened slightly against other major currencies.

Analysts warn that while markets have shown signs of recovery, volatility may continue in the coming days as investors closely watch developments in the Middle East and their potential impact on global economic stability and energy markets.

US stock futures fall amid Middle East crisis

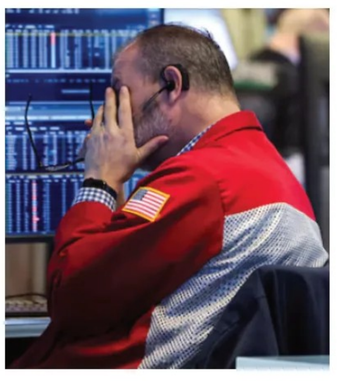
NEW YORK

U.S. stock futures slipped on Thursday as investors assessed the economic impact of the ongoing conflict in the Middle East. Market sentiment remained cautious after rising oil prices and geopolitical uncertainty raised concerns about inflation and global economic stability.

Futures linked to major indices showed declines.

The Dow Jones Industrial Average futures dropped 0.38 percent, while S&P 500 futures fell 0.2 percent and Nasdaq-100 futures declined 0.25 percent in early trading.

The tensions escalated after Iran reportedly launched a new wave of missiles toward Israel, adding to concerns about a prolonged regional conflict.



Rising oil prices have also raised fears that higher energy costs could fuel inflation and complicate policy decisions by the US Federal Reserve. Despite the uncertainty, technology stocks have shown some resilience this week. Bargain hunters have been buying tech shares that were heavily sold earlier, helping the Nasdaq index post modest gains over the past few days.

On Wednesday, the Nasdaq rose 1.29 percent, while the S&P 500 gained 0.8 percent and the Dow Jones closed 0.5 percent higher.

Investors are now closely watching key economic data, including weekly jobless claims and the upcoming non-farm payroll report.

Markets will also look for signals from Federal Reserve officials about future interest rate decisions.

Yash Toxic Delay Pushes Love Mocktail 3 To March

The Kannada film industry saw a sudden change this week after the makers of Yash's upcoming movie Toxic delayed its planned release. The big budget film was earlier scheduled to arrive in theatres on March 19 2026. On Wednesday the team confirmed that the movie will now release worldwide on June 4 2026. The makers said the decision was taken because of uncertainty in some international markets especially in the Middle East. Since the film aims for a global audience the team decided it was better to move the date and ensure a wider release.

The change has also helped another Kannada film Love Mocktail 3 starring Darling Krishna. The romantic drama was earlier planned for an April 10 release but will now arrive in theatres on March 19. The new date allows the film to attract festival crowds during Ugadi and Eid ul Fitr.

The Love Mocktail series already enjoys strong support from audiences after the success of its first two films. In the third part Krishna returns as actor and director. The story follows an emotional journey centered on a father and daughter. Child artist Samvrutha plays the young girl who becomes the heart of the narrative. Actress Milana Nagaraj also appears in an important role. The film's first motion poster features the song Neene Neena Nanella Aase. The soulful track is composed and sung by Nakul Abhyankar while lyrics are written by director Shashank.

Toxic Delay May Bring Vijay Jana Nayagan Release Earlier

The postponement of the much awaited film Toxic starring Yash has created new possibilities for other movies in the South film industry. The film was earlier scheduled to release in theatres on March 19 2026. However the production team recently announced that the movie will now arrive worldwide on June 4 2026.

The makers explained that the decision was taken because of the current situation in some Middle Eastern countries. Since the film is planned as a global release the team wanted to make sure it reaches audiences in every major market without difficulties. While many fans felt disappointed by the delay the change may benefit another big project.

According to several reports the team behind actor Vijay's upcoming film Jana Nayagan is now discussing a possible earlier release. Earlier plans suggested that the film could reach theatres on June 18 2026. But producers are reportedly not very interested in releasing it just two weeks after Toxic.

Media reports say the makers are waiting for the film's certification process. The censor board is expected to review the movie soon and give its decision by March 17 2026. If the certification is completed on time the team may choose a new release window sooner than expected.

Sources also say the film might release shortly after the Tamil Nadu legislative assembly elections. The elections are expected to take place in the third week of April 2026. If this schedule remains the same the movie could reach theatres in late April or early May.

However some reports suggest the producers may still prefer a June release because June 22 is Vijay's birthday. Releasing the film on June 18 could allow celebrations to continue through the weekend and attract huge crowds to theatres across the region.

Vijay Speaks On Jana Nayagan Row At Public Rally

Actor turned politician Vijay spoke about the controversy surrounding his upcoming film Jana Nayagan during a public rally in Thanjavur. The star addressed the ongoing discussions about the film's release and thanked supporters who stood by him during the issue. During his speech, Vijay said that many people had raised their voices when the film faced problems with its release. He also mentioned that M. K. Stalin, the Chief Minister of Tamil Nadu, had earlier spoken about the matter. Vijay said that some people might try to silence him, but the public's voice cannot be stopped. He stated that there is a Vijay in every household, and their voices would continue to be heard. The film was earlier planned to release on January 9 but was postponed due to censorship issues. Directed by H. Vinoth, the film also stars Pooja Hegde, Prakash Raj and Mamitha Baiju.
